CHINESE GOVERNMENT USES STERN MEASURES AT PEKING

Twenty Chinese Followers of the Bolshevik Army of Agitators Are Summarily Strangled—Short Shift Given Them Following a Secret Trial—Russian Agitators Released But Ordered To Leave China—Russian Spy System Uncovered.

The raid by northern soldiers and police on buildings attached to the soviet embassy at Peking, early this month, Thursday had an aftermath in the execution by strangling of 20 Chinese, including a woman, arrested arrested in the buildings as communist agitators.

Li Ta-Chai, a widely known communist, was one of those executed. The semi-official announcement of the executions said that the prisoners were tried secretly for three days before a special court. This court ordered the summary execution of 20 of the more than 50 originally arrested and their orders were carried out at police headquarters.

Foreign correspondents Thursday were permitted to inspect translations and photographs of documents stated to have been seized in the raid of April 6, which has resulted in a protest from the soviet government and the withdrawal from Peking of the soviet charge d'affaires and the entire embassy personnel.

The documents contained the seating plans of legation dinner parties at Peking, alleged verbatim reports of dinner table conversations, lists of all callers at the various legations, reports of their conversations and minute instructions for hiring "spies" at the British, American and Japanese legations to obtain such information.

These spies were not allowed to know that they were working for the soviets, according to the documents, but were to be told they were working for a Chinese political party. They were paid a special premium for obtaining secret military documents.

Another document, stated by the northern officials to have been seized in the raid, purported to be a resolution adopted at the seventh plenary session of the executive communist international at Moscow, supposed to have been held in January, and called for the bolshevization of China by organizing the peasantry, by economic strikes and of a political anti-imperialist struggle. This document said that the Chinese revolution must take on a wider anti-capitalist development.

Other documents shown to the correspondents purported to be translations of the minutes of meetings of the Cantonese military council at Canton attended by Michael Borodin, the Russian who has been acting as adviser to the Cantonese government at Hankow. A military code also was displayed by the northern officials.

RECOVERED FROM FIRE.

Following the fire Monday evening April 25, the Zenker Brothers' Monumental works were partially put out of commission, but in three days everything was put in first class shape and now the plant is in complete working condition and they are fully prepared for Decoration day orders.

The fire was confined to the work room and the stock did not sustain the slightest damage.

The phrase "on tick" is said to date back to the Seventeenth century when a tradesman's bill was called a ticket.

ed of the casualties aboard the U. S. auxiliary vessel Penguin, which was fired on by Chinese near Kiangyin several days ago, was brought to Shanghai Thursday aboard the U. S. destroyer, Peary.

The man, whose name was understood to be Neilson, was placed in the ship's hospital aboard the U. S. transport Chaumont.

Members of the Kuomintang (Cantonese political party), say that the firing on the Penguin was not intended by the Cantonese, who were seeking to hold up coal barges en route for Hankow.

They said that the Penguin was conveying Chinese steamers with coal to Hankow, that they did not object to the shipment of a small amount for the American navy, but that a Chinese contractor was attempting to slip thru an additional supply for Hankow, which is the seat of the radical Cantonese government, which is being opposed by the moderate government set up at Nanking.

In attempting to hold up this coal, it was said, firing had been resorted to, but that the Cantonese did not want to hit the Penguin.

V. F. W.'S FLAG LADY

Mrs. Charles Augustine Robinson of New York, national flag lady of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, will present the set of flags that will mark the complete restoration of the frigate Constitution, famous in history as "Old Ironsides." Inspired by a patriotic devotion to the national emblem and the ideals of liberty for which it stands, she has devoted the recent years of her life to the creation of a wider love and respect for the Stars and Stripes. She has made scores of beautiful flags with her own hands.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Cleveland—Mike Casper and Emil Tishler, who confessed connections with 11 robberies in Cleveland were given sentences of 20 to 25 years in the penitentiary.

Columbus—John Toland, Portage county, died Thursday night in the Ohio penitentiary despite efforts of Warden P. E. Thomas to carry out orders of Judge C. B. Newton, Portage county to "alleviate or cure" the ailments of the afflicted man. Death was believed due to tuberculosis.

Columbus—David Atkins, Canton Negro convicted of killing Harry Malone, railroad detective, will again have the date of his electrocution set by the supreme court. Atkins has been given several stays and this is the third refusal of the supreme court to reverse the decision of lower courts.

Columbus—Samuel Schlup, prominent business man of Cambridge today was appointed by Governor Vic Donahey to be probate judge of Guernsey county. He was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Judge P. A. Donnell.

Springfield—Clarence Knott has asked the sheriff's office to assist him in locating the owner of a carrier pigeon which flew in an open window of his home. The pigeon has the No. 7409 on one of its legs and beneath the Number A. 1. 26-C.

London—Melvin Turner, on trial here for the alleged murder of his stepfather, Henry Beathard, Mt. Sterling marshal, again took the witness stand today on resumption of court.

Late Thursday Turner on the stand denied that he killed Beathard. He said that he attended a dance on February 9, when the attack took place and that he came home to find his stepfather wounded. He denied being intoxicated.

SEVEN STATES FIGHT FLOOD DISEASE PERIL

Said to be the Greatest Peace Time Health Problem Ever to Face America.

Health authorities of the seven states swept by the Mississippi Valley flood, aided in their efforts by the American Red Cross, are planning vigorous means to protect the health of more than 200,000 homeless persons.

Called into conference by Dr. William R. Redden, national medical officer of the Red Cross, the health authorities were told that they faced solving "the greatest peace-time health problem ever to confront America."

Disease, stalking in the wake of the flood disaster, is jeopardizing life and health in Kentucky, Arkansas, Illinois, Missouri, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee, declared Dr. Redden. He asserted that prompt and efficient measures were essential to prevent the flood from taking greater toll thru disease, which will be likely to become general unless sanitation and other conditions are remedied.

In his plea, Dr. Redden was joined by Henry M. Baker, national director of relief for the Red Cross, who related that a staff of 42,000 nurses and a relief fund that has passed $2,675,000 are available.

Reports of smallpox, measles, mumps, typhoid fever, malaria fever tuberculosis, influenza and other diseases due to germs and exposure in the flooded areas were heard by the conference. It was emphasized, however, that conditions had not reached an alarming stage.

It was held that the most dangerous period would come when the flood waters recede, leaving stagnant lakes and pools, muddy flats and broken or damaged sanitation fatalities.

CHOIR LEADER WAS ARRESTED IN COLUMBUS

Frederick Brown, of Elyria, Charged With Non-support of Three Children.

Frederick Brown missing Elyria choir leader whose arrest in Columbus Thursday ended a state-wide search conducted since he disappeared from his home more than a week ago was free Thursday night on $500 bond.

Brown was charged in a warrant sworn by his wife with abandonment and non support of his three minor children. He waived arraignment and his bond was furnished by his mother.

He was arrested at the postoffice in Columbus as he inquired for mail addressed to Frederick Thompson.

The hunt for him was delayed at the start by the collapse of his wife following his disappearance. Until she swore to the warrant Lorain county officials contented themselves with merely a local search.

Two anonymous telephone calls shortly before Brown left, warning Mrs. Brown of approaching trouble, added mystery to the disappearance.

AUTOMATIC CAR PHYSICIAN IN OPERATION

None of the ills that motors are heir to can escape this new $12,000 automobile trouble shooter, established in Chicago for the benefit of the motoring public. The testing laboratory is equipped with every modern device to diagnose motor troubles and is employed exclusively for that purpose. An hour's test under the delicate instruments suffices in sounding out every part on the modern car and discovering whether or not it is functioning at its proper standard of efficiency.

DEVELOPMENT OF SPORT IS AIDED

Particularly Beneficial to Golfer in Affording Fast Transportation.

It would be interesting to delve into statistics and determine to just what extent the automobile has aided the development of any line of sport, or all lines. It is certainly true that sport flourished, but not in all its glory, before the advent of the horseless carriage. At any rate, it has certainly increased its scope since it was possible for Mr. Common People to own an automobile.

Big Aid to Golf.

"The motor car has greatly aided one of the oldest games known," says Robert S. Breyer of California, "and that is the royal and ancient pastime of golf. Great numbers of people throughout Europe, and especially in England and Scotland, swarmed the links playing golf, but the automobile has made it possible for thousands of persons in this country to indulge in the sport. An increase is also noticeable in the old country."

"The minutes of today's everyday business man are worth real money to him. And he is one of the greatest devotees of the sport in the country. The only reason for that is the automobile, quick efficient transportation between his home, the links and his office. There are very few courses in the entire country that are not accessible to the automobile, and courses to which there is no other transportation save walking."

Other Sports Benefited.

"Golf, however, is not the only sport that has been benefited by the motor car. Name any sport, and it will owe much of its recent development to the automobile. It is just a matter of a few moments to convince yourself of this. Pass the baseball parks in the morning, visit the beaches, the tennis courts, in fact any place where sport is indulged in, and note the automobiles there."

"The automobile itself, the greatest aid developed in modern business, offers a variety of sport that no one other thing could. Nothing is more beneficial than a spin into the fresh, invigorating air, and physicians everywhere recommend motoring as a great aid to a healthy physical and mental condition. Thousands annually join the ranks of those who are enjoying the benefits of the motor car in all walks of life."

Scheme Devised to End Peril of Motor Fumes

A recent experiment in the city laboratories of Paris is said to have demonstrated the practicability of a catalyzer designed to consume the carbon-monoxide gas produced by motor cars—which Prof. Yandell Henderson of Yale and others have asserted was a serious menace to public health in crowded cities.

The device consists of an exhaust pipe containing certain chemicals possessing catalyzing properties which reduce the combustion temperature of the noxious gas. By the passage of a current of air through the tubes the fumes are consumed before they can pass out into the street.

M. Kohn Abrest, director of the laboratories, says that the average motor car in Paris gives off one-half cubic meter of carbon-monoxide for each half gallon of gasoline burned and that a cubic meter of such gas renders six cubic meters of air unfit to breathe. In the country the half cubic meter of gas is scattered along half a dozen miles and consequently is harmless, he says, while in Paris the automobiles move more slowly and often fill the air of narrow streets with injurious quantities of fumes.

Pedestrians Quite

Safe in Afghanistan

Not only has the United States the greatest number of motor vehicles, but it has higher ratio of automobiles to population than any other country—one car to every six persons.

China, with a population of 436,000,000, has only one automobile for every 31,871 people, and India has only one car for every 3,573 of its population of more than 247,000,000.

Hawaii has the second highest ratio, with one car for every eleven persons, and Canada ranks third with thirteen persons for every automobile. The ratio of automobiles to population in New Zealand, which stands next in the order, is one car to fourteen persons, that of Australia, one to twenty; that of Denmark, which stands sixth, is one to fifty-one.

Ratios for other countries vary from one to fifty-three for France, to one to one million one hundred thousand in the case of Afghanistan, the lowest in rank.

Fastening Arrangements on Hood Will Get Loose

The fastening arrangements on the hood of the modern automobile usually hold it tight enough to prevent rattles, but when the fastenings wear, annoying rattles sometimes develop.

Simple Anti-Rattler for Hood.

A way to eliminate them is shown in the illustration. Take a piece of small-size garden hose the length of the hood, split it with a knife and slip it over the lower edge of the hood.—Popular Science Monthly.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES

Speedometers may lie, but you can't convince the judge that the one on the cop's motorcycle does.

No medium priced cars are shown at the Paris auto show, because in France there are only rich drivers and poor drivers.

A new British automobile travels 176.45 miles an hour. It is hard to believe that anybody in Great Britain is in that much of a hurry.

The majority of automobile accidents occur at intersections. Motorists should always assume that another driver is just coming around the corner.

It isn't strictly the railroad crossing's fault that it is more deadly than it used to be. Man got along fairly well when he had the horse to do his thinking for him.

A bill to compel motorists to stop at railroad crossings is being opposed by motorists, and there is some force to the argument that it is about time for trains to stop as a matter of habit and look for the parts.

ECONOMY WITH PROGRESS

More than $1,120,000,000 will be spent for American roads this year. This will include the building of 26,841 miles of standard highways, many large bridges and a constantly growing system of market and auxiliary roads. Eight states will build more than 1,000 miles each, Kansas leading with 1,598 miles and Wisconsin second with 1,564 miles.

The people decide whether their road taxes shall be high or low—first, by the amount of money they vote; second, by its businesslike expenditure for road building purposes.

Probably in no section of the United States have taxpayers received more for their money than in Marion County, Oregon. This county has maintained a businesslike road policy for years with the result that practically every mile of road is paved or rocked. The modern tractor and road building machinery have made road work possible which would have been out of the question under the old-fashioned horse and hand methods.

In paving roads, Marion County has utilized practically every mile of its old rock road base by covering it with a suitable wearing course of asphaltic concrete. Permanent concrete culverts and bridges have been installed, and the taxpayers have been given a practical road system built on a business basis at a fraction of what the cost would have been if the same roads had been built on an experimental political basis. The result has been progress with tax economy, instead of progress with tax wastefulness.—The Manufacturer.

COLDS HELD CHIEF LOST-TIME CAUSE

Ailment Blamed for 39 Per Cent of Absences.

Washington, D. C.—The common cold goes to the head of the list as a cause of lost time. In a survey of absences from work in a big industrial firm over a period of ten years, just completed by statisticians at the United States public health service, it was found that colds caused a time loss equivalent to 1.4 days per year for every man on the pay roll and 2.1 days per annum for every female employee. Colds were directly responsible for 39 per cent of all the absences among the men and for 31 per cent among the women.

Diseases of the general type known as respiratory caused approximately half of all the absences, but were not so common among the women as the men. Women, it would appear from these records, are more liable to disablement from nervous disorders and diseases of the throat and tonsils, but their disabling illnesses are shorter on the whole than the men's. This condition in favor of the so-called weaker sex is counterbalanced, however, by the fact that their absences were more numerous, totaling fourteen calendar days apiece during the whole ten years, while that of the men reached only 8.9.

A high proportion of illnesses occurred among the younger employees, notably among the women. The statisticians suggest that this circumstance may be in part accounted for by the dropping out of the less healthy. The group representing the ages thirty to thirty-five, they state, seems as a whole to have a greater resistance to colds, tonsillitis and stomach disorders than the younger ages.

Want Grant Log Cabin Back at Point Pleasant

Columbus, Ohio.—The little log cabin in which Gen. U. S. Grant was born at Point Pleasant, Ohio, would be returned to its original location, after more than 40 years of wandering about the country, under a bill passed by the Ohio house of representatives. For many years the cabin has been one of the attractions at the Ohio fair, having been purchased by the state after being moved about the country on private exhibition for several years. It was moved from Point Pleasant in 1885 to St. Louis, where it was displayed, and later taken to the world's fair in Chicago in 1893. The Ohio senate is expected to approve the house measure.

Bears Are Well Versed in Game Laws in East

Philadelphia.—The black bear of Pennsylvania is among the cleverest of animals in eluding hunters. In summer, when protected by game laws, Bruin rambles carelessly about the state, looking things over and picking up delicacies here and there in orchards, berry patches and dairies. Now and then he pauses to watch farm hands at work.

When fall comes and Bruin is legally "in season" he is actually "out," seeking refuge in remote ravines, away from the sound of hunters' shots. It was only with the greatest perseverance that Pennsylvania hunters bagged 514 bears last season.

EVIDENCE MAY CLEAR HICKMAN

Huntington, W. Va., April 27.—M. F. Leonard, attorney, retained here to secure evidence in the murder of Dan Garrett, Chillicothe policeman, stated today he had discovered new evidence that would clear John Hickman, awaiting death at Columbus for the murder.

Leonard left Huntington this afternoon for Portsmouth to confer with Attorneys Day and Rais, Hickman's counsel, in regard to this new evidence. He refused to make a statement other than the evidence bore out in every detail the statement made by Mrs. Cora E. Boothe, fortune teller, who declared James E. Long confessed slaying Dan Garrett, the policeman, to her a few days before he committed suicide.

FIREARMS BAN

Regulations To Keep Them Out of Mails Are Issued.

Washington, April 27.—(UP.)—Postmaster General New today issued regulations covering the recent act of Congress making unavailable, except to authorized persons, all firearms capable of being concealed on the person. The law becomes effective May 10.

The regulations provide that all persons receiving firearms through the mail must call at the Postoffice and establish identity before receiving deliveries, and that parcels containing firearms must be plainly marked.

The law provides a fine of $1,000, two years' imprisonment, or both, for violation.

Roanoke, Va., April 27.—(UP.)—Doctors who had abandoned hope for Walter L. Booth, 18-year-old farm boy, admitted today there was a "slight possibility" of recovery for the youth who has lived six nights and five days with collapsed lungs.

Continual pumping up and down of Booth's paralyzed arms by friends has kept him alive.

HOPE FOR BOOTH

Many thousands of men owe their success in the world to their good wives who have steadied and balanced their social relations. These helpmates are the pilots in times of stress, guiding the ship of marital happiness into a safe haven. Any man is lucky to have a mate who keeps him close to the wise course that leads to a respected future. Many a man would not have the civic standing that is his today were it not for his wife.

And by the same token, many a man would lose his credit standing in the community if it were not for an institution such as The City Loan, with a popular loan service for public usage showing the way and providing the money for establishing his financial independence in the commercial world.

CONVENTION
IN CLEVELANDMore Than Ten Thousand
Young People Will Attend
the Big Meeting in July.Announcements of the features of the Thirty-First International Christian Endeavor convention to be held in Cleveland, Ohio, July 2 to 7, are growing in interest to the young people of the Protestant church of Pick-away and other Ohio counties. Rev.
George Weir of the United Brethren church, is the county campaign director of the effort to interest all young people in this convention secure their enrollments to it and their attendance at it.This convention will attract to the city of Cleveland during these early July days more than 10,000 young people from all over America and from Ohio outside of Cleveland. The Cleveland young people in Christian Endeavor, Epworth League, Baptist
young Peoples' Unions, etc., have already registered over 5,000 of their own number for it. It is representative of the North American states
and provinces.These conventions are held each two years to inspire thru thousands of delegates the many other thousands back in the home churches
in cities, towns and open country communities. The training of youth by service. By competent conference leadership, enthusiastic and capable platform orators, great crowds parades, musical and pageant programs these objectives are secured.The convention's major sessions will be held in Cleveland's beautiful municipal auditorium, the scene of the last Republican National convention, and the location of the first performances of "The Miracle" outside of New York City. It has permanent seating capacity of 12,500 not counting a capacity of 1,000 on the platform. Many conference and exhibit rooms are also available.GOOD YEAR
FOR SUGAR
BEET GROWERSAll Statistical Signs are Now
Favorable - University
Analyst Reports.With sugar prices stronger than a year ago, the statistical signs point
to a good year for Ohio sugar beet growers, in the opinion of K. H.
Myers, extension specialist in rural economics at the Ohio State university.There is always the weather to consider and the yield per acre,
Growers who ordinarily can produce 8 tons or more of sugar beets an acre stand a chance of making money, says Mr. Myers. Yield of 8 tons an acre is necessary to meet the cost of production, according to records kept during 1926 on northwestern Ohio farms.Since the war sugar prices in the United States have been considerably below prices of other foods. The peak price of 19.5 cents pound came in 1920. Since 1921 the price has never been above 10 cents, the economists points out. In 1925 the average price of sugar was 7.2 cents a pound, or 30 per cent above the pre-war average price. The average price of 22 common articles of food in 1925 was 57 per cent above the pre-war averages."Now sugar prices appear to be in a stronger position than a year ago,"
Mr. Myers continues. "The estimated 1926-27 crop is 6 per cent under the previous season. With normal consumption the carry-over from the present season is likely to be small.""Production of sugar in Cuba during the present season has been limited, by law, to 4,040,000 tons, considerably under the past year's crop.
Consumption of sugar has shown a steady increase during the past few years and there is no reason to de-lieve that it will not continue to increase."Famous in HistoryThe "Fair Geraldine," who is referred to so often by English writers

MARGERY—for a very good reason of her own—usually sought
the little table at the back of the avenue cafe. There, with a wall behind her and one beside her, she felt secure. It was a quiet little place, neatly arranged and well-kept, and well patronized at breakfast by business men and young women who later took the subway downtown.A place where a simple and appetizing breakfast could be found at a reasonable price—that was all the cafe represented to her, until that morning when HE entered and sat down not far from her, glanced at her with eyes that looked as if they had never gazed at any one except in kindness, and then turned to his newspaper.She stole a swift glance or two at him. There was a little glint of gray at his temples, his face was gentle and yet suggestive of quiet strength—the face of a man who had lived bravely through tempestuous times and had emerged without losing faith."I could love a man like that—if he loved me," she thought to herself, and then woke up—"Foolish! day-dreaming in a cafe! When he sees you as you are, he'll never look again."She waited until he had gone by the broad window, then she left her table and limped slowly to the same desk.That was her grief—the crippled ankle that, like a stroke of fate, had taken her girlhood and almost her courage. But by the time she had reached her chair behind her desk in the drug store, she had put thoughts
of him aside tenderly as one lays cherished things in lavender.He came the next morning, however, and many mornings after that.
He had his regular breakfast time,
she found, and she timed her appearance with his, always taking care to leave after his departure, not before.Then came the morning when the peaceful little cafe filled suddenly with strangers, and Margery guessed that they were delegates to the convention to be held in one of the nearby halls. He came in in his quiet, serene way, and at the quick leap of her heart she shifted her eyes."Miss, may we put a chair at your table?" She awoke to hear the smiling Japanese head-waiter ask.She nodded—and there HE was with her."I am sorry to crowd in at your private corner," he said smiling, "but it seemed to be a matter of breaking into your corner or breaking out without breakfast. I hope you'll forgive my intrusion.""I do forgive," she answered, a bit breathlessly.It was a golden moment, and golden minutes followed in which his comradeship made her feel that she had known him a long time. She chatted and gossiped with him, happy in his companionship.Then the spell broke. Just before he left, he paused, and his clear, open eyes held hers. "I wonder if you would like to take in one of the concerts with me tonight? I am betting you like music from what you have said. Does it appeal to you? I really should like to know you, and in this whopping big city there's no one to give us a formal introduction."Before she thought, she agreed, and she listened to his plans. The moment he had gone she remembered, and the world grew gray about her.All that day she pondered ways and means of escape, but in the end with a sob choked bravely back, she vowed to herself: "I will go! I will go! I've been cheated of so much happiness—I want just this wee bit!"She waited his coming that night with fear, yet with resignation. She would have two happy hours with him; then she would tuck them away
among her memories. "And I just know he will be kind to me!" she told herself.He was. Her lameness he seemed to take for granted, he aided her through the evening so inconspicuously that she almost forgot the dark corner in her life. She reveled in the music, for she made her love of music fill empty places in her days; and his mood and enjoyment were in tune with hers.Then, afterwards, he took her to his apartment where she found his mother, motherly and kind, ready with an attractive lunch. They played together some of the easier selections
they had heard earlier. And when the time for her departure came, she was on the verge of tears.In the corridor, as he drew her wrap about her, he must have guessed her mood because he said gently: "Have you had a happy evening?"She stood silent, knowing tears would come before speech.She felt his arm go about her gently, then as if divining her thoughts he said tenderly: "Now listen and give heed, little lady with the brave eyes, I want to see more of you—tomorrow and days beyond tomorrow. I asked that the waiter give me a seat with you. Next time I want to come because you want me
to, and—promise you won't try to escape me!"She nodded a dark head, and something in her heart sang to her that there would be memories and memories to come—and none to be folded away in lavender.

Believing that her seventy-year-old sister, Mary, was only in a trance and would recover, Caroline Raywell, sixty-eight, guarded the body for three weeks before the two were found recently in Hull, England. The body was lying on a matting before a roaring fire, and was surrounded by loaves of bread and other food.

HOSPITALS IN INDIA SPREAD THE LIGHT

The missionary hospital in India has an unique value, says Albert E. Moore, M. D., English Baptist missionary in Palwal, North India: "The days of blasphemy, scorn and sneers are largely over, and India is awakening to the supreme beauty of Christ and all He signifies. There is a wonderful growth of the spirit of service which is manifested in the highest degree in a mission hospital. The people stand around and watch loathsome sores being dressed, pariah and Brahmin receiving equal attention; they watch minor operations being performed, and the consequent relief of pain; they hear no demand for money, and they hear the reason for it all in the evangelist's address. A striking corroboration of this aspect of medical missions is given in a letter from the chief magistrate of the district, who wrote to me: 'India is now beginning to wake up, and now is the time when clean, self-sacrificing, unselfish work like that of your mission can be of infinite value in setting a standard for the people.'"

HEN PRODUCT RECOGNIZED IN EGG WEEK

This Industry Stands in Fifth Place as Measured in Dollars and Cents.

The exceptional success which attended the celebration of "National Egg Day" on May first, last year, has encouraged the poultry producers and the allied industries in uniting in a great national program to pay homage to the American hen; to pay tribute to our billion and a quarter dollar poultry industry and to commend the product of the hen to our great American consuming public.

Fully realizing and appreciating the immense magnitude to which America's poultry industry has developed during the last decade; appreciating the great scientific advances which have been responsible for placing the industry on a high business plane; knowing full well the great economic importance of the poultry industry in our national scheme of human food production and appreciating the almost universal interest which our people have either in the production or consumption of eggs, the National Poultry Council, which is a delegate organization representing the production and allied interests of the poultry industry, has, by Proclamation, set aside the first seven days of May (May first to seventh inclusive, 1927) as "National Egg Week."

The National Poultry Council is organizing state and national committees to develop and promote appropriate observances of "National Egg Week." This week will be celebrated in the various states in many unique, interesting and effective ways, the details being developed by the state committees as they see fit.

"National Egg Week" will be a period in which our respects to an industry that stands fifth among our agricultural pursuits as measured by the value of products produced. It will be a period set aside to spread the message of the peculiar and valuable protective properties possessed by eggs in our human diet. It will be a period in which special emphasis can be laid upon more efficient and effective methods of producing and marketing the egg. It will, in fact, be a time when every branch of the poultry industry can "preach the gospel" of the importance of poultry husbandry and poultry products in the every day practice of feeding the millions of people in this great nation of ours.

AMUSEMENTS

With what is purported to be her finest screen offering to date, "Afraid to Love," Florence Vidor, arrives today at the Met theater.

"The Orchid Lady of the Screen," in this her third Paramount starring vehicle plays a role different in all respects from anything she had hitherto essayed. Having proved herself a capable comedienne with her recent picture, "The Popular Sin," Miss Vidor again entertains in lighter vein.

"Afraid to Love," concerns itself with a highly humorous love triangle with Miss Vidor as the base, and Clive Brooks and Jocelyn Lee as the other two sides.

Katherine Silverton, finds herself alone in the world and with her fortune at such a point that she has to go to work. Her family solicitor, John Travers (Norman Trevor) insists that there must be some other solution to her difficulty, and discovers it when Sir Reginald Belsize (Clive Brooks) comes to him for legal advice. Sir Reginald has an inheritance with a string or two tied to it. An eccentric uncle disapproves of his fiancée Helen de Semiano (Jocelyn Lee) and on his death wills Sir Reginald his fortune provided he marry immediately someone other than fair Jocelyn. But Belsize is in love or thinks he is, and doesn't want to give Jocelyn up. Travers suggests that he marry some woman with the understanding that she allow a divorce as soon as he gets his legacy.

Here is where Miss Silverton displays ingenuity. The jealous Jocelyn insists that the bride be someone far less good looking than herself, Miss Vidor arrives and seems to have been made to order for the job of Sir Reginald's temporary bride. She peers upon the world thru thick glasses; further that that her eyes are crossed, she wears dowdy clothes, and appears altogether of a sour disposition. Jocelyn approves her.

On the honeymoon journey to Paris Florence discards the make-up, and appears as her own beautiful and cultured self.

LIONESS FIGHTS TO SAVE TAMER

Rescues Man Who Was Kind to Her Cubs.

London.—How a lioness successfully defended the life of a man who had administered medical attention to her sick cubs when he was attacked by a huge African lion was recounted in dispatches received here from Leicester.

Capt. Fred Wombwell, a lion tamer, with a circus showing at Leicester, entered the cage of the lioness and her cubs after a performance, and was attending to the sick cubs when the lion broke through a partition from an adjoining section of the cage, and sprang on the tamer.

The defenseless man was pinned in a corner of the cage, struggling with the enraged beast, when the mother lioness savagely sprang upon the back of the lion, biting and tearing the beast with her claws. Her efforts were successful, and after a fierce and savage struggle she dragged the lion off Captain Wombwell. His back and shoulders bleeding profusely from innumerable wounds, Wombwell succeeded in dragging himself from the cage. His strength was practically gone, but he latched the door before falling unconscious.

In the meantime, the lion turned to defend himself from the mother of the cubs, and the two beasts engaged in a fierce fight.

Wombwell was found near the cage by an attendant who was attracted to the scene by the noise of the conflict.

In connection with the rescue by the lioness, it is pointed out that Captain Wombwell was saved from almost certain death under practically identical circumstances three years ago.

G. A. R. MONUMENT FOREST CEMETERY.

After many years of exposure to summer's suns, and winters' storms the Soldiers' monument began to show signs of deterioration and the need of repairs. Groce Post has had the necessary repairs made and he is now fit for another long tour of duty.

Our thanks are due to the Misses Laura K., and Emma Mader for a handsome contribution for the above purpose, in memory of their father and our old comrade, Captain Jacob F. Mader Jr., of Co. B, 61st Regiment, Ohio, Veteran Volunteers 1861-1865.

Seven hundred of our comrades of the War of the Rebellion, 1861-1865, sleep under the shadow of this monument.

How Do You Choose Shoes?

Do you select shoes which will be smart and becoming and entirely suited to your needs?—or simply because they happen to be the newest fad?

In a season when so many styles are brought forth, it is very wise to choose your shoes for definite purposes, or to wear with certain costumes. For, after all, being "well dressed" depends upon your own attractiveness. And clothes, or shoes chosen in that way, will always give greater pleasure.

"Good Shoes for Less"

GOOD PROGRAM IS RENDERED BY THE DARBYVILLE UNION

Interesting Session Held At Home of Mrs. Wilda Carpenter—Topic of the Meeting Was "Good Citizenship" and Law Enforcement Was Thoroughly Discussed—Institute will Be Held In Church the Second Monday In May—Prosperity Tea In the Afternoon.

The Darbyville Woman's Christian Temperance union met at the pretty country home of Mrs. Wilda Carpenter and was opened with music, then the scripture lesson was read by President Bernice Ginder.

After devotionals and business, the following program on "Good Citizenship," was rendered:

A paper on "Court Attendance and Christian Citizenship," was read by Mrs. Hattie McKinley. Court trials are public trials, court records are public records open for inspection to any who wish to see them. The public is expected to know what the courts do. Judges cannot hold court behind closed doors and must sign their own records.

When women knew they must vote, they began to study the constitution. They learned that after legislators make laws and executives arrest law violators, judges and juries convict or acquit; and hence, the courts are the finality of government.

Prevalence of crime alarms the United States. Of the many causes, non-enforcement of law is given by the most thoughtful citizens as the chief reason for the lawlessness of the people. Law often is not enforced because judges say, "the evidence is not sufficient," or it is said that the court did not want to convict. Upright judges and faithful executives; federal, state and municipal want the people to know the facts concerning law enforcement. These facts, it seems, are obtainable by court visits. Hence, women who want the government upheld, are urged to "go-a-visiting" courting the law enforcement facts. How? General Andrews in charge of the prohibition unit of the treasury of the United States government, told the women in Detroit in November, 1925, "keep on making public opinion, to cooperate, not merely by cheerful words or pleasant smiles, but thru good, hard work." He also said, "keep eyes on the court. Have a committee to sit in the court room every time a criminal is tried."

How can public opinion be sound if it is not informed, unless someone you trust is present to hear what is going on? A small rotating committee or the entire membership of the local union would be of inestimable value. Women themselves would learn in a short time more unforgettable facts about government than in any other possible way. The court officials would be encouraged and be helped by interest shown. Public opinion would be created concerning the much discussed criminal court procedure; the ability, intelligence, integrity of federal, state and local officials, including revenue officers, prosecutors, sheriffs and policemen; nationality of defendants names from records; possible influence of party organizations.

Therefore, since women are urged by government to aid enforcement, and by the W. C. T. U. to know the law, know the officials charged with law enforcement and know the courts, time will be saved by court attendance.

A paper on "The Duty of a Christian Citizen," was read by Mrs. Anna Carpenter. As a Christian citizen, it is my duty to know the temperance and moral laws and the attitude of rulers and candidates toward them; to see that the temperance and moral laws are enforced; to agitate for better moral laws; to elect to office men who will enforce the prohibition law and all other laws and then uphold them; to call upon all bad officials to enforce the prohibition law and to seek their removal if they refuse; to agitate for reform measures by voice and pen; to train the young for good citizenship.

A paper on "Time and Christian Citizenship" was discussed by Mrs.

Ginder. Earnest women will budget their time, make your hours count; for budgeting time, paper, pencil and determination are needed to cut out some, not so vital, expenditure of time, some prideful activity, etc.; budget time to urge upstanding men and women friends of prohibition to be candidates for office; budget time for commendatory letters to editors, officials, ministers, anyone who has dared to be dry enough for newspaper notice.

Many a good cause has been saved when its leader, about ready to quit, received a commendatory letter, which inspired him to "keep on."

Budget your time, W. C. T. U. ladies and members, for one afternoon once a month for the meetings. Surely you can spare a few hours once a month for this worthy cause. What do you think about it?

Several articles written by Senator Capper were read by Mrs. Wilda Carpenter. One was about a judge in Ohio, who had convicted a man and sent him to the workhouse, but later procured him employment and board at the workhouse and sent his family the money he earned.

The W. C. T. U. will have its institute at the church Wednesday, May 1. We want every member, including our new members and visitors to be present.

Budget your time for the institute. There will be a Prosperity Tea in the afternoon and some radio broadcasting.

The W. C. T. U. will give a party to all who wrote on the Scientific Temperance Instruction subjects the past year. It is very gratifying.

ARABS MAKE GOOD AS DESERT POLICE

Because of their exceptional military qualities, more noticeable in the service of the French authorities, the Chambaa tribesmen are acquiring a distinction as conquerors of the Sahara.

They are less known to the world than are the Tauregs, plunderers of the camel caravans and explorers. However, the Chambaa are earning a reputation in tracking down the despoiling elements and have made it possible to cross the Sahara from Algeria to the River Niger with no fear of danger.

Staid as the camels on which they are mounted, able to ride over the hot sands for days and nights, stopping only to eat from their little bags filled with dried grasshoppers, and endowed with a keenness of sight that gives deadly accuracy to their rifles, these nomads inspire a great fear among the plundering tribesmen.

Too many matrimonial matches merely flare up and burn out.

Continents Connected?

Bones of great apes like those that still exist in Africa have been found in India, and some scientists believe that at one time there must have been a land connection between the two countries.

"ANTEX" WINDOW SHADES

Are Low in Price

But See the Quality for Yourself

You'll probably read advertisements that strongly urged you to buy the product advertised. This advertisement simply tells you what you can get in a window shade for 75 cents in 36 inch width (wider shades in proportion) during the introductory sale---or while our supply lasts. Judge the value for yourself!

If you have never seen "Antex" window shades, there's a surprise in store for you at our special "Antex" introductory sale.

"Antex" shades are the newest window shades on the market. They cannot crack or develop pinholes! The surface is non-porous and does not soil readily.

"Antex" shades have a beautiful crepe finish; they are made like felt, of long, strong fiber; they have no oil, paint, starch, clay or other coating to crack; the colors are commercially fast.

They can be boiled in hot water, or soaked in hot or cold water, and after drying, will stand every test just as though they had never been wet. If wrinkled, no holes appear, and a hot iron and damp cloth will remove the wrinkles; two strong men can play tug-of-war with them; they can be cleaned with a dry rubber sponge, with art gum, or with ordinary paper cleaner

Try any test yourself. Satisfy yourself---but do so before our limited supply is gone.

Vaccination for Control of Roup

Scientific Study Made of One of Most Serious Diseases of Fowls.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A scientific study of roup in poultry, one of the most serious fowl diseases, supports the conclusion that proper vaccination is one of the most effective means for reducing this source of loss.

The study was conducted by Dr. George W. Stiles and Dr. Hubert Bunyea, both of the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. In a recent scientific paper, "Vaccination and Medication for Control of Roup," Doctor Bunyea reports the following conclusions, based on experiments:

Young Birds Susceptible.

Birds about one year old appear to be more susceptible to roup than those two years old or older under the same conditions.

The use of antiseptics in the drinking water (permanganate of potash, and bichloride of mercury in particular) does not appear to have any appreciable curative virtue and very little preventive property.

The local external application of solutions of mercurchrome or silver nitrate is not very effective in the prevention or treatment of roup.

Prevention of Disease.

Bacterins prepared from the bacteria involved in outbreaks of roup appear to be effective in the prevention of the disease as well as the treatment of incipient cases, even under unfavorable climatic conditions. Two kinds of bacterins have proved effective, one made from bacteria occurring in a single outbreak and one from infections in a number of outbreaks.

The progress of roup is appreciably influenced by "secondary invaders," meaning bacteria which develop in addition to the chief virus that causes the disease. The use of vaccination in treating a considerable number of poultry flocks with roup gave very encouraging results.

Wheat Protein Content of Greater Importance

Protein content has become of increasing importance in determining the price paid for any particular lot of wheat. On occasions when the supply of high protein wheat has been less than the demand, premiums of as much as a cent have been paid for each added tenth of one per cent of protein over a given basic amount.

Protein tests by different chemists often do not agree within one tenth of one per cent even when the ability and conscientiousness of the chemist are beyond question, with the result that numerous complaints are heard regarding the making of protein tests on wheat.

To determine how close different laboratories should be able to report protein results on the same sample of wheat as well as to explain why these variations occur, was the object of investigations reported in Department of Agriculture Bulletin No. 1400-D, "Testing Wheat for Protein with a Recommended Method for Making the Test."

The sources of error which occur in making protein tests have been carefully studied and as a result a standard procedure is recommended to eliminate these errors. Suggestions are given also regarding how close independent laboratories should agree when making protein tests.

A copy of the bulletin may be obtained by writing the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Agricultural Facts

Test your seed---don't guess.

A test in time may save a bushel in nine. Test your seed corn.

The best way to economize in man and horse labor is to keep them busy.

Lime is required as a plant food by all crops. Some crops require more than others.

Plants, like animals, must be well fed if they are to pay for the labor and cost of growing them.

Lime promotes the decay of vegetable matter in the soil and thus aids in the formation of humus.

Competition may be the life of trade, but co-operation will certainly add vigor to the life of farming.

Lime, by sweetening the acid soil, favors the growth of most legumes, such as clover, alfalfa, and peas.

Potatoes, whether for seed or eating purposes, should be stored at temperatures of not more than 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

Keep after the weeds, as this is very important, especially when the vegetable and flower plants are young. Cultivate often and good.

Remember when we used to think that alfalfa wasn't a safe feed for horses---that it caused heaves and overworked the kidneys? The idea has been pretty well exploded.

Gwinnett's Ghost Leads to Long-Lost Documents

Atlanta, Ga.--The ghost of Button Gwinnett, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, has come back to help Georgia recover valuable historical documents lost for a century or more.

Ever since the state filed claim in a New York court to a will, which carries the signature of Gwinnett, sold at an auction last summer for $22,500, hundreds of the papers have been returned almost as mysteriously as they were taken, says Miss Ruth Blair, state historian.

"No questions asked" is the one condition most of the persons asked in returning the documents. Others mailed them in anonymously.

The Gwinnett will had been in the state's files at one time, the attorney-general contends, and was reported lost about 25 years ago.

Securing Wall Paper

If wall paper persists in peeling off despite repasting, it can be secured with flat-headed carpet nails, on the heads of which pieces of paper have been gummed to make them unnoticed. Again, doors and floor-boards often shrink, causing a draught under the door. Such a gap is easily got rid of by inserting pieces of paper to build up the carpet or linoleum.

Every Reason to Want to Be Married

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright.)

OF COURSE Ted Farnsworth carried a watch—a very thin, extremely expensive watch that his mother had given him when he was graduated from college and it usually came within five minutes one way or the other of telling the right time. After leaving it with the jeweler for regulation on several occasions to find that at the end of each visit it was as temperamental as ever Ted gave up the idea of carrying the exact time about with him. And in Melville where he now lived with his mother there was Miss Day.

Miss Day lived a block further from the station than he did, and it had come to be Ted's unfeeling habit to take the passing of this young woman in the morning as a signal to put on his hat and coat.

"I suppose," said his mother one day at breakfast, "that if Miss Day ever stopped commuting I should have to get a really up-to-date clock—or that you'd have to have your watch regulated. Here she comes now. And she's got on her raincoat. You'd better wear yours and take an umbrella."

So Ted sauntered toward the hall, slipped his feet into his rubbers, donned hat and coat and took an umbrella and did not notice until he was outside that the sun was shining. He bowed in a perfunctory manner at the station to the girl in a red raincoat and then hurried along the platform to join one or two of the men with whom he customarily rode to town. Some one observed his wet-weather paraphernalia, but Ted was too gallant to place the blame where it belonged.

Then one morning he loitered longer than usual at breakfast—or at least so it seemed to him. He left his house as usual a few minutes after Miss Day had passed. Two blocks from the station he saw his train draw in and while he was still running up the station stairs the train drew swiftly out.

He turned to go into the waiting-room, not quite sure what he would do next, when he saw Miss Day panting for breath coming up the stairs. Ted had never been introduced to her, though he did lift his hat when he passed her because she in her turn always bowed to him. Miss Day spoke first.

"My, but I'm out of breath," she gasped. "I ran two blocks to catch the train and then missed it. I don't know what I am going to do after this. You know I never can keep a watch going right—and there's been a girl on our street who always started out just a shade before I had to start. She went the other direction toward the trolley. But she's going to be married next week and so she's stopped working."

That explained one part of the conundrum, but Dick wanted to know why she could no longer be trusted as a barometer.

"But why did you wear a raincoat the other day when the sun was shining?"

Miss Day pouted a little. "It was foolish, wasn't it?" she asked. "But you see it was my new red raincoat and I like it so much that I just wore it anyway. Don't you like raincoats?"

Dick, becoming more and more convinced of the prettiness of Miss Day, stammered something to the effect that it was the prettiest raincoat he had ever seen. Then as his companion sighed and said that it was very important for her to be in her office before half-past nine, a way out of the difficulty occurred to him.

"I can go back and get my car," he said, "and if you don't mind fast driving, we can get in town in about three-quarters of an hour. We'll have to wait an hour for the next train."

In spite of fast driving along crowded roads Jim and Miss Day talked gaily all the way in that morning and he did not leave her until he had gained permission to call for her at five and drive her home. He'd have to take the car home, anyway. And that day he took his watch to a first-rate jeweler's and secured the use of a guaranteed timepiece for the period required to put his own in condition.

On the way back that evening his companion complained again about her difficulty in catching her train now that her reliable neighbor was to be married.

"I don't see what a girl nowadays wants to be married for, anyway," suggested Jim.

"Every reason in the world," was Miss Day's emphatic rejoinder. "That is, if she really cares for the man."

Jim had a solution to offer for her difficulty. He told her that he had a thoroughly reliable watch and that every day five minutes before it was time for him to start he would telephone to her.

And so matters rested for a few months. Meantime Jim called frequently at the house of the Days in the evening.

Then one day without preamble he reminded her of what she had said about getting married. "You said a girl had every reason in the world to want to be married if she really cared for the man. The important thing then is this—do you really care for me—or could you possibly bring yourself to do so?"

And Miss Day, looking very serious and pretty at the same time, said that she really believed she cared a great deal for Jim already.

A Change

Nine weddings out of ten the society editor can guess correctly the selections that will be played and sung, preceding, during and following the ceremony. However, the other day she found a new one. Along with the program of the usual bridal airs of "Oh Promise Me," "At Dawning," "To a Wild Rose," etc., was the number "Adore, and Be Still."

Looks like new; it isn't tho just had them cleaned at Barnhill's, very common remark. Call office 710.

UNCLE SAM OUT Philadelphia, April 27.—(UP.)—Three decisions adverse to the government's theories on the application of provisions of the income tax laws and under which it will have to refund taxes of more than $900,000 in two of the cases, were handed down by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals here today.	BOUNCES HIMSELF THROUGH WINDOW Chelsea, Mass., April 27.—(UP.)—While jumping up and down on a bed, James McCarthy, 4, was bounced through an open window and fell three stories. At the hospital it was found he had escaped with a broken leg and bruises.	WARNED BY WILLIS Lansing, Mich., April 27.—(UP.)—U. S. Senator Frank B. Willis, of Ohio, and ex-Governor Pat M. Neff, of Texas, joined in warning the Detroit area, Methodist Men's Council, meeting here, that "annihilation at the polls" awaits a presidential candidate "who does not stand foursquare for law enforcement and constitutional government."	Increase Potato Yield Per Acre Farmers Do Not Make Efficient Use of Knowledge in Growing Spuds. (Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Last fall a firm of California's potato growers harvested an average of 1,000 bushels of potatoes per acre from nine acres. The rest of the country, if previous production records are a reliable index, harvested approximately 113 bushels to the acre. Farmers in Great Britain have been producing an average of 200 bushels per acre for a number of years. It is evident, says William Stuart, potato specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture, that the general run of farmers who grow potatoes in the United States do not make efficient use of the available knowledge on increasing acre production. Cause of Low Yield. Of the many factors causing a low average potato yield in this country, poor seed is one of the most important, says Mr. Stuart. The American potato grower, generally speaking, pays too little attention to the quality and quantity of the seed used. The California record was due in part to the use of 40 bushels of seed per acre, almost twice the quantity generally used even by the most progressive growers. Perhaps the best way for the average grower to be assured of good seed is to purchase "certified seed." Certified seed is being produced by groups of growers in twenty or more states, who give special attention to the production of seed that will pass state inspection as to yielding ability, uniformity, truthness to name, and freedom from disease. Improved Seed. There is abundant evidence that certified seed is improved seed, and that it will yield much more than common or "grocery store" seed. For instance, the average yield in Michigan last year was 122 bushels per acre, while the average production from certified seed was 256 bushels per acre. This represents a gain of 134 bushels on each acre planted with certified seed. In comparative tests made last year by the Tennessee state experiment station certified seed produced an average of 183 bushels to the acre, while the yield from uncertified seed was but 102 bushels per acre. Soy Beans One of Easy Crops to Grow on Farm Soy beans will grow on all kinds of soils. Soy bean hay is more nutritious than cowpea hay and stock like it better. As a milk-and-butter producer, they are equal to alfalfa and superior to cottonseed meal. A bushel of soy beans is worth more for feed than two bushels of corn. They can be hogged down without any harvesting expense. When cut at the proper stage of growth, the hay is equal to alfalfa for dairy cattle. Drought and excessive rainfall effect them less than cowpeas. It is one of the easiest crops to grow and harvest. They make a fine hay pasture. They can be grown with cowpeas to hold the pea vines off the ground, and will improve the quality of the hay and make it easier to cure. They increase the yield of the following crop. They make a rich and nutritious hay and one of the cheapest. One can always find ready sale for both beans and hay. They are one of the most economical of soil improvers. They require no fertilizers except acid phosphate. Plant more soy beans.	ANNUAL MEETING The annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Columbus Presbytery was held at the Indianola Presbyterian church in Columbus on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The classic period of Latin literature lasted barely 100 years. Between the year 100 B. C. and the beginning of the Christian era, Cicero, Lucretius, Caesar, Horace, Virgil, Ovid and Livy all lived and wrote and passed away. SPECIAL SALE AND DEMONSTRATION

By a Practical Paint Man From the Factory

10% Discount On Thrift Day

Thrift Paint is the best Paint Proposition we ever sold or know about, for these reasons:

Thrift Paint is made of Pure White Lead, Zinc, Colors, Dryer and Linseed Oil in required proportions to produce the longest wear, beautiful colors and finish. Thrift Paint comes in a master painter's unreduced form and is ground so fine and mixed so well that it does not settle, and covers more surface. Thrift Paint is made ready for use by mixing one gallon of "Thrift" with one gallon of pure linseed oil, producing two gallons of paint, for first coat or priming more oil is added.

The Johnson Paint Co. make only high grade paints, but conceived this idea of saving Half the Cost of cans, boxing, labels, labor and freight which makes a saving of 75c to $1.00 per gallon as compared with other High Grade Paints.

This outstanding bargain for Thrift Paint is offered one day only in the year, when you can buy Thrift at 10 per cent less by booking your orders and paying a small amount down, and balance when you get the paint anytime during May, June or July.

Selfishness Punished

If you seek in the spirit of selfishness to grasp all as your own, you shall lose all and be driven out of the world, at last, naked and forlorn, to everlasting poverty and contempt.—Jonathan Edwards.

One Survivor of Fleet

Of the fleet of vessels sent out from Spain July 24, 1525, under the command of Garcia Louisa, to follow up the discoveries of Magellan, only one ship was able to reach the Moluccas.

INDIANS HAD FIRST LEAGUE ALLIANCE

Six Nations Were Factors in the Early Days

Washington, D. C.—The tradition of the first effective all-American league of nations is sinking before the rising tide of civilization.

For 200 years members of the Six Nations of the great Iroquois confederacy have looked upon themselves as a distinct nation. Now, however, the remnants of the Iroquois tribes in Canada and the Senecas, Onondagas and others in New York find to their dismay that they are legally considered citizens of countries traditionally supposed by them to be their allies. Most of the old guard among the Iroquois, according to Arthur C. Parker, director of the Rochester municipal museum, in a report to Art and Archaeology, feel that for either Canada or the United States to legislate them into citizenship was as futile as for those same countries to legislate China and Mexico into the United States or Canadian citizenship.

The treaty signed by representatives of the Six Nations and the newly established republic of the United States in 1794 in Canandaigua, N. Y., is still as sacred to the Iroquois as the Monroe doctrine is to the State department. The more enlightened among their numbers, however, see, says Mr. Parker, that this measure of assimilation is only economic necessity and that for Indians to seek to maintain economic independence would be suicide.

Was League to Enforce Peace.

The Iroquois confederacy was a genuine league to enforce peace, but by force of circumstances developed into the most effective fighting body among the aborigines of North America. All the tribes that were not asked to participate in the confederacy were jealous and strife naturally followed until they were subdued. The Iroquois, moreover, started and enforced the original Americanization scheme, according to Mr. Parker. Every nation that resisted its power was segregated and led to new homes and taught how to behave.

Though their culture was not of a high type, in their civil and social structure they excelled. Their "constitution" is said to be ideally adapted to the type of people for which it was designed. Women had an important place and the council of women had the power of nominating all the civil chiefs. Women, being mothers, were regarded as more valuable than men and their ransom price when captured was twice that of a man.

Iroquois Factor in Nation.

In the Seventeenth century the Iroquois were an important influence in determining whether this country would be dominated by the French or the English. Their Huron rivals in Canada looked to the French as a means of overthrowing their ancient enemy, while in New York the Iroquois looked to the British for the same end. Though the French were, on the whole, better liked, the Indians eventually found that the English were squarer to deal with.

According to Mr. Parker the French forfeited the respect of their Huron allies by burning the fields and stores of corn in the Seneca villages. To burn corn, even that of an enemy, was to sin against nature, against the spirits that sustain life. Therefore the pillaging French soldiers were offending one of the vital religious principles of the Hurons as well as Iroquois, and so contributed their share to losing for France an empire in the new world.

Tells How Irish Quit

War to Pick Flowers

Kilkenny, Ireland.—Even an Irish soldier will give up a fight for a flower, according to Lady Ossory of Kilkenny castle, who is once more laying out beds of azaleas on the grounds of her home overlooking the River Nore.

During the Irish troubles the castle was once in the direct line of attack. Lady Ossory attributes her escape from grave danger to the fact that soldiers of the Free State and Republican forces, coming from opposite directions, were distracted by the gay colors of her famous azaleas.

Instead of carrying on their fight they stopped to pick the flowers. The struggle is now locally known as the "battle of the flowers."

Lord and Lady Ossory were besieged by the rebels during much of the trouble. Lord Ossory inherited the property from his uncle, Lord Ormonde.

Americans Launch Rival

To Monte Carlo Sport

Monte Carlo, Monaco.—For years humane societies have protested in vain against the pigeon shoots held in Monte Carlo under the auspices of the Casino. Thousands of birds are slaughtered to provide amusement for the sportsmen who congregate at the gambling center of Europe.

Now a group of American, British, French and Italian marksmen have decided to do more than protest. They have formed a rival shooting club, with headquarters at Cagnes-sur-Mer, halfway between Nice and Cannes. It is announced that the American clay pigeon will be used exclusively. This is the first time that a definite step has been taken to rival any of the sporting activities of Monte Carlo.

BEATING THE CORN BORER AT HIS WORK

Special Machinery Put to Work to Aid the Farmer to Clean Up Fields.

More than 500 tractors, and stubble beaters are now at work in Ohio's 42 borer-infested counties, helping farmers pulverize the European corn borer's favorite winter headquarters, corn stubble.

This report has been sent to the agricultural college extension service at the Ohio State university, Columbus, from the Toledo headquarters of the state-federal campaign to check the corn borer.

The stubble beater, a device manufactured especially for corn borer warfare, pulverizes corn stubble with short, loose knives which revolve at the rate of 1,500 revolutions a minute.

Until May 1, these beaters are being loaned to farmers throughout the invested area, in Indiana, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania as well as in Ohio, at the rate of a dollar an acre. That includes tractor and operator and fuel. This amount is then deducted from the two dollars an acre the farmer gets if his corn fields and premises pass inspection on or after May 1, as clean. After May 1, the stubble beaters will gradually be diverted to the fields of farmers who have made no effort to clean up.

Much of this machinery was diverted last week, the Toledo headquarters reports to the wheat sections of the state. Where farmers have fall sown wheat in corn stubble land, it is necessary to get the stubble immediately, for soon the wheat will be so far advanced the stubble beater will injure it.

JUNIOR CHOIR PERFORMANCE IS VERY GOOD

The Musical Comedy "The Church Fair" Made a Hit Thursday Evening.

Quite unusual, in an amateur performance was the careful thought for details in "The Church Fair" the cantata, which was sung Thursday evening by the Junior choir of the Lutheran church. Before a crowded house, and under the splendid direction of Mrs. James P. Moffitt and Miss Mary Heffner the young people sang their parts with ease and charming manner and there were many splendid voices among the soloists and choruses.

The roles of the girls were those of helpers at a church fair, where there were flower and candy booths and what-not booths, and the girls looked lovely enough to sell out everything to the tightest wads in town. Some of the boys were regular clowns in their parts as attentive admirers trying to help the fair ladies, with very poor success, in most cases. They put across some antics that would make professionals perk up and take notice.

It was all, exceedingly well done, and while a few features were especially good, the entire performance was quite entertaining. There was only one drawback—we sat on the front row, and they did not even offer us any lemonade. But we were content just to see the act and listen to the very promising talent of the actors.

The play will be repeated this evening.

Any More Like This?

F. L. Rollins of Laconia, N. H., reports that his record of being the son of a father who was alive when George Washington was President, has been equaled in his own city by Mrs. Bertha A. Dearborn, who is the daughter of Stephen N. Morse of Ashland, born April 11, 1793. He was seventy-five years of age when Mrs. Dearborn was born.—Indianapolis News.

FROM PRIVATE TO SURGEON-GENERAL

One of the five national vice commanders of the American Legion this year is a doctor of medicine who enlisted in the National Guard of his state as a private in the medical corps, was commissioned the first year and in a short time arose to the position of chief surgeon of the state and a member of the governor's staff as surgeon-general. He is Dr. John G. Towne of Waterville, Maine, born May 26, 1877, a graduate of Baltimore university and a leader in the medical profession.

Both Mrs. Towne and their daughter Elizabeth are much interested in Legion affairs. Mrs. Towne helped form the Bourque unit of the American Legion auxiliary, has served as its president, was the first president of the state auxiliary and has served as national committeewoman from Maine for a number of years. Elizabeth was the youngest member enrolled as a charter member of the Bourque unit.

Doctor Towne enlisted in the medical corps of the Second Maine regiment in March 1908, and was promoted in rapid order to the position of surgeon-general on the governor's staff. When the regiment was called out April 13, 1917, a little more than a week after the United States declared war, Major Towne went into the service and when Gen. Clarence

Dr. John G. Towne.

R. Edwards arrived in Boston to take command of the Northeastern department, he summoned Major Towne to headquarters and made him director of the hospitals of the Twenty-sixth division, then in process of formation.

He was sent to France in advance of the division and established hospitals in the training area around Neufr Chateau. When the division arrived they found splendid hospital facilities already established and these were used by many other outfits which served in that area. During the winter he was placed on detached service at the British field school on the Western front. He served there for three months and later was sent to the first army training school at Longres. He was near Cambrai when the Germans wiped out the British force there, being in the town for two hours before the Germans broke through and practically every man that he was associated with was either killed or captured.

Major Towne returned to the division in time for service on the Soissons front and again on the Toul front, supervising the moving of hospitals from one sector to the other. After he had established hospitals on the Chateau Thierry front he received orders which made him commander of camp hospital No. 29 about forty-two miles from Bordeaux and there he stayed for ten months, leaving the hospital after the armistice to be attending surgeon at Bordeaux. He received his promotion as lieutenant colonel May 2, 1919, for his efficient work in the base section area. Upon his return to this country Colonel Towne went into the reserves.

He became the first commander of the George N. Bourque post No. 5, serving two years. Among other Legion positions he has held, is that of state commander in 1923.

Presents Land to Post

The El Monte (Calif.) post of the American Legion has been presented title to a half-acre of land near the city by Francis Marion Guess in honor of his brother Sergt. John Guess, who was killed in France in 1918. The land, which is beautifully wooded, will be used as a building site for a Legion clubhouse and for a boy scout camping ground. It will be called Camp John Guess.

Ohio Woman Post Commander

Mrs. Maude Ramsey, who served as a nurse during the World war and received a citation from the French government for bravery under fire, has been elected commander of Willard Stour Post of The American Legion at Kenton, Ohio. Mrs. Ramsey is believed to be the first woman in Ohio to command a Legion post.

CHINESE GOVERNMENT USES STERN MEASURES AT PEKING

Twenty Chinese Followers of the Bolshevik Army of Agitators Are Summarily Strangled—Short Shift Given Them Following a Secret Trial—Russian Agitators Released But Ordered To Leave China—Russian Spy System Uncovered.

The raid by northern soldiers and police on buildings attached to the soviet embassy at Peking, early this month, Thursday had an aftermath in the execution by strangling of 20 Chinese, including a woman, arrested in the buildings as communist agitators.

Li Ta-Chai, a widely known communist, was one of those executed.

The semi-official announcement of the executions said that the prisoners were tried secretly for three days before a special court. This court ordered the summary execution of 20 of the more than 50 originally arrested and their orders were carried out at police headquarters.

Foreign correspondents Thursday were permitted to inspect translations and photographs of documents stated to have been seized in the raid of April 6, which has resulted in a protest from the soviet government and the withdrawal from Peking of the soviet charge d'affaires and the entire embassy personnel.

The documents contained the seating plans of legation dinner parties at Peking, alleged verbatim reports of dinner table conversations, lists of all callers at the various legations, reports of their conversations and minute instructions for hiring "spies" at the British, American and Japanese legations to obtain such information.

These spies were not allowed to know that they were working for the soviets, according to the documents, but were to be told they were working for a Chinese political party. They were paid a special premium for obtaining secret military documents.

Another document, stated by the northern officials to have been seized in the raid, purported to be a resolution adopted at the seventh plenary session of the executive communist international at Moscow, supposed to have been held in January, and called for the bolshevization of China by organizing the peasantry, by economic strikes and of a political anti-imperialist struggle. This document said that the Chinese revolution must take on a wider anti-capitalist development.

Other documents shown to the correspondents purported to be translations of the minutes of meetings of the Cantonese military council at Canton attended by Michael Borodin, the Russian who has been acting as adviser to the Cantonese government at Hankow. A military code also was displayed by the northern officials.

A sailor, the most seriously wounded of the casualties aboard the U. S. auxiliary vessel Penguin, which was fired on by Chinese near Kiangyin several days ago, was brought to Shanghai Thursday aboard the U. S. destroyer, Peary.

The man, whose name was understood to be Neilson, was placed in the ship's hospital aboard the U. S. transport Chaumont.

Members of the Kuomintang (Cantonese political party), say that the firing on the Penguin was not intended by the Cantonese, who were seeking to load up coal barges en route for Hankow.

They said that the Penguin was conveying Chinese steamers with coal to Hankow, that they did not object to the shipment of a small amount for the American navy, but that a Chinese contractor was attempting to slip thru an additional supply for Hankow, which is the seat of the radical Cantonese government, which is being opposed by the moderate government set up at Nanking.

In attempting to hold up this coal, it was said, firing had been resorted to, but that the Cantonese did not want to hit the Penguin.

V. F. W.'S FLAG LADY

Mrs. Charles Augustine Robinson of New York, national flag lady of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, will present the set of flags that will mark the complete restoration of the frigate Constitution, famous in history as "Old Ironsides." Inspired by a patriotic devotion to the national emblem and the ideals of liberty for which it stands, she has devoted the recent years of her life to the creation of a wider love and respect for the Stars and Stripes. She has made scores of beautiful flags with her own hands.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Cleveland—Mike Casper and Emil Tishler, who confessed connections with 11 robberies in Cleveland were given sentences of 20 to 25 years in the penitentiary.

Columbus—John Toland, Portage county, died Thursday night in the Ohio penitentiary despite efforts of Warden P. E. Thomas to carry out orders of Judge C. B. Newton, Portage county to "alleviate or cure" the ailments of the afflicted man. Death was believed due to tuberculosis.

Columbus—David Atkins, Canton Negro convicted of killing Harry Malone, railroad detective, will again have the date of his electrocution set by the supreme court. Atkins has been given several stays and this is the third refusal of the supreme court to reverse the decision of lower courts.

Columbus—Samuel Schlup, prominent business man of Cambridge today was appointed by Governor Vic Donahey to be probate judge of Guernsey county. He was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Judge P. A. Donnell.

Springfield—Clarence Knott has asked the sheriff's office to assist him in locating the owner of a carrier pigeon which flew in an open window of his home. The pigeon has the No. 7409 on one of its legs and beneath the Number A. 1. 26-C.

London—Melvin Turner, on trial here for the alleged murder of his stepfather, Henry Beathard, Mt. Sterling marshal, again took the witness stand today on resumption of court. Late Thursday Turner on the stand denied that he killed Beathard. He said that he attended a dance on February 9, when the attack took place and that he came home to find his stepfather wounded. He denied being intoxicated.

SEVEN STATES FIGHT FLOOD DISEASE PERIL

Said to be the Greatest Peace Time Health Problem Ever to Face America.

Health authorities of the seven states swept by the Mississippi Valley flood, aided in their efforts by the American Red Cross, are planning vigorous means to protect the health of more than 200,000 homeless persons.

Called into conference by Dr. William R. Redden, national medical officer of the Red Cross, the health authorities were told that they faced solving "the greatest peace-time health problem ever to confront America."

Disease, stalking in the wake of the flood disaster, is jeopardizing life and health in Kentucky, Arkansas, Illinois, Missouri, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee, declared Dr. Redden. He asserted that prompt and efficient measures were essential to prevent the flood from taking greater toll thru disease, which will be likely to become general unless sanitation and other conditions are remedied.

In his plea, Dr. Redden was joined by Henry M. Baker, national director of relief for the Red Cross, who related that a staff of 42,000 nurses and a relief fund that has passed $2,675,000 are available.

Reports of smallpox, measles, mumps, typhoid fever, malaria fever, tuberculosis, influenza and other diseases due to germs and exposure in the flooded areas were heard by the conference. It was emphasized, however, that conditions had not reached an alarming stage.

It was held that the most dangerous period would come when the flood waters recede, leaving stagnant lakes and pools, muddy flats and broken or damaged sanitation fatalities.

CHOIR LEADER WAS ARRESTED IN COLUMBUS

Frederick Brown, of Elyria, Charged With Non-support of Three Children.

Frederick Brown missing Elyria choir leader whose arrest in Columbus Thursday ended a state-wide search conducted since he disappeared from his home more than a week ago was free Thursday night on $500 bond.

Brown was charged in a warrant sworn by his wife with abandonment and non support of his three minor children. He waived arraignment and his bond was furnished by his mother.

He was arrested at the postoffice in Columbus as he inquired for mail addressed to Frederick Thompson.

The hunt for him was delayed at the start by the collapse of his wife following his disappearance. Until she swore to the warrant Lorain county officials contented themselves with merely a local search.

Two anonymous telephone calls shortly before Brown left, warning Mrs. Brown of approaching trouble, added mystery to the disappearance.

RECOVERED FROM FIRE.

Following the fire Monday evening April 25, the Zenker Brothers' Monumental works were partially put out of commission, but in three days everything was put in first class shape and now the plant is in complete working condition and they are fully prepared for Decoration day orders.

The fire was confined to the work room and the stock did not sustain the slightest damage.

AUTOMATIC CAR PHYSICIAN IN OPERATION

None of the ills that motors are heir to can escape this new $12,000 automobile trouble shooter, established in Chicago for the benefit of the motoring public. The testing laboratory is equipped with every modern device to diagnose motor troubles and is employed exclusively for that purpose. An hour's test under the delicate instruments suffices in sounding out every part on the modern car and discovering whether or not it is functioning at its proper standard of efficiency.

DEVELOPMENT OF SPORT IS AIDED

Particularly Beneficial to Golfer in Affording Fast Transportation.

It would be interesting to delve into statistics and determine to just what extent the automobile has aided the development of any line of sport, or all lines. It is certainly true that sport flourished, but not in all its glory, before the advent of the horseless carriage. At any rate, it has certainly increased its scope since it was possible for Mr. Common People to own an automobile.

Big Aid to Golf.

"The motor car has greatly aided one of the oldest games known," says Robert S. Breyer of California, "and that is the royal and ancient pastime of golf. Great numbers of people throughout Europe, and especially in England and Scotland, swarmed the links playing golf, but the automobile has made it possible for thousands of persons in this country to indulge in the sport. An increase is also noticeable in the old country."

"The minutes of today's everyday business man are worth real money to him." And he is one of the greatest devotees of the sport in the country. The only reason for that is the automobile, quick efficient transportation between his home, the links and his office. There are very few courses in the entire country that are not accessible to the automobile, and courses to which there is no other transportation save walking.

Other Sports Benefited.

"Golf, however, is not the only sport that has been benefited by the motor car. Name any sport, and it will owe much of its recent development to the automobile. It is just a matter of a few moments to convince yourself of this. Pass the baseball parks in the morning, visit the beaches, the tennis courts, in fact any place where sport is indulged in, and note the automobiles there."

"The automobile itself, the greatest aid developed in modern business, offers a variety of sport that no one other thing could. Nothing is more beneficial than a spin into the fresh, invigorating air, and physicians everywhere recommend motoring as a great aid to a healthy physical and mental condition. Thousands annually join the ranks of those who are enjoying the benefits of the motor car in all walks of life."

Scheme Devised to End Peril of Motor Fumes

A recent experiment in the city laboratories of Paris is said to have demonstrated the practicability of a catalyzer designed to consume the carbon-monoxide gas produced by motor cars—which Prof. Yandell Henderson of Yale and others have asserted was a serious menace to public health in crowded cities.

The device consists of an exhaust pipe containing certain chemicals possessing catalyzing properties which reduce the combustion temperature of the noxious gas. By the passage of a current of air through the tubes the fumes are consumed before they can pass out into the street.

M. Kohn Albrecht, director of the laboratories, says that the average motor car in Paris gives off one-half cubic meter of carbon-monoxide for each half gallon of gasoline burned and that a cubic meter of such gas renders six cubic meters of air unfit to breathe. In the country the half cubic meter of gas is scattered along half a dozen miles and consequently is harmless, he says, while in Paris the automobiles move more slowly and often fill the air of narrow streets with injurious quantities of fumes.

Pedestrians Quite

Safe in Afghanistan

Not only has the United States the greatest number of motor vehicles, but it has higher ratio of automobiles to population than any other country—one car to every six persons.

China, with a population of 436,000,000, has only one automobile for every 31,871 people, and India has only one car for every 3,573 of its population of more than 247,000,000.

Hawaii has the second highest ratio, with one car for every eleven persons, and Canada ranks third with thirteen persons for every automobile. The ratio of automobiles to population in New Zealand, which stands next in the order, is one car to fourteen persons, that of Australia, one to twenty; that of Denmark, which stands sixth, is one to fifty-one.

Ratios for other countries vary from one to fifty-three for France, to one to one million one hundred thousand in the case of Afghanistan, the lowest in rank.

Fastening Arrangements on Hood Will Get Loose

The fastening arrangements on the hood of the modern automobile usually hold it tight enough to prevent rattles, but when the fastenings wear, annoying rattles sometimes develop.

Simple Anti-Rattler for Hood.

A way to eliminate them is shown in the illustration. Take a piece of small-size garden hose the length of the hood, split it with a knife and slip it over the lower edge of the hood.—Popular Science Monthly.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES

Speedometers may lie, but you can't convince the judge that the one on the cop's motorcycle does.

No medium priced cars are shown at the Paris auto show, because in France there are only rich drivers and poor drivers.

A new British automobile travels 176.45 miles an hour. It is hard to believe that anybody in Great Britain is in that much of a hurry.

The majority of automobile accidents occur at intersections. Motorists should always assume that another driver is just coming around the corner.

It isn't strictly the railroad crossing's fault that it is more deadly than it used to be. Man got along fairly well when he had the horse to do his thinking for him.

A bill to compel motorists to stop at railroad crossings is being opposed by motorists, and there is some force to the argument that it is about time for trains to stop as a matter of habit and look for the parts.

ECONOMY WITH PROGRESS

More than $1,120,000,000 will be spent for American roads this year. This will include the building of 26,841 miles of standard highways, many large bridges and a constantly growing system of market and auxiliary roads. Eight states will build more than 1,000 miles each, Kansas leading with 1,598 miles and Wisconsin second with 1,564 miles.

The people decide whether their road taxes shall be high or low—first, by the amount of money they vote; second, by its businesslike expenditure for road building purposes.

Probably in no section of the United States have taxpayers received more for their money than in Marion County, Oregon. This county has maintained a businesslike road policy, for years with the result that practically every mile of road is paved or rocked. The modern tractor and road building machinery have made road work possible which would have been out of the question under the old-fashioned horse and hand methods.

In paving roads, Marion County has utilized practically every mile of its old rock road base by covering it with a suitable wearing course of asphaltic concrete. Permanent concrete culverts and bridges have been installed, and the taxpayers have been given a practical road system built on a business basis at a fraction of what the cost would have been if the same roads had been built on an experimental political basis. The result has been progress with tax economy, instead of progress with tax wastefulness.

COLDS HELD CHIEF LOST-TIME CAUSE

Ailment Blamed for 39 Per Cent of Absences.

Washington, D. C.—The common cold goes to the head of the list as a cause of lost time. In a survey of absences from work in a big industrial firm over a period of ten years, just completed by statisticians at the United States public health service, it was found that colds caused a time loss equivalent to 1.4 days per year for every man on the pay roll and 2.1 days per annum for every female employee. Colds were directly responsible for 39 per cent of all the absences among the men and for 31 per cent among the women.

Diseases of the general type known as respiratory caused approximately half of all the absences, but were not so common among the women as the men. Women, it would appear from these records, are more liable to disablement from nervous disorders and diseases of the throat and tonsils, but their disabling illnesses are shorter on the whole than the men's. This condition in favor of the so-called weaker sex is counterbalanced, however, by the fact that their absences were more numerous, totaling fourteen calendar days apiece during the whole ten years, while that of the men reached only 8.9.

A high proportion of illnesses occurred among the younger employees, notably among the women. The statisticians suggest that this circumstance may be in part accounted for by the dropping out of the less healthy. The group representing the ages thirty to thirty-five, they state, seems as a whole to have a greater resistance to colds, tonsillitis and stomach disorders than the younger ages.

Searchlights Fool Moon-Loving Animals

Pasco, Wash.—Rabbits and other small fur-bearing animals that love to roam by the light of the full moon have been enjoying one continuous carnival this winter. Nature is unable to explain to her underground subjects the cause of the brilliant nights, but mere man knows. The huge electric and gas beacons showing aviators on the Pasco-Elko air-mail line proper directions are the attraction for the intermountain wild life.

WINTON WEDS AGAIN

Cleveland, April 27.—(UP.)—Alexander Winton, automobile manufacturer and president of the Winton Motor Works, was honeymooning today with his third wife, it became known. Marion Campbell, composer of Cleveland's romantic opera, "Love's Wishing Well," and the motor car magnate were married in Covington, Ky., Monday, friends of the couple learned.

Want Grant Log Cabin Back at Point Pleasant

Columbus, Ohio.—The little log cabin in which Gen. U. S. Grant was born at Point Pleasant, Ohio, would be returned to its original location, after more than 40 years of wandering about the country, under a bill passed by the Ohio house of representatives. For many years the cabin has been one of the attractions at the Ohio fair, having been purchased by the state after being moved about the country on private exhibition for several years. It was moved from Point Pleasant in 1885 to St. Louis, where it was displayed, and later taken to the world's fair in Chicago in 1893. The Ohio senate is expected to approve the house measure.

Bears Are Well Versed in Game Laws in East

Philadelphia.—The black bear of Pennsylvania is among the cleverest of animals in eluding hunters. In summer, when protected by game laws, Bruin rambles carelessly about the state, looking things over and picking up delicacies here and there in orchards, berry patches and dairies. Now and then he pauses to watch farm hands at work.

When fall comes and Bruin is legally "in season" he is actually "out," seeking refuge in remote ravines, away from the sound of hunters' shots. It was only with the greatest perseverance that Pennsylvania hunters bagged 514 bears last season.

Huntington, W. Va., April 27.—M. F. Leonard, attorney, retained here to secure evidence in the murder of Dan Garrett, Chillicothe policeman, stated today he had discovered new evidence that would clear John Hickman, awaiting death at Columbus for the murder.

Leonard left Huntington this afternoon for Portsmouth to confer with Attorneys Day and Rais, Hickman's counsel, in regard to this new evidence. He refused to make a statement other than the evidence bore out in every detail the statement made by Mrs. Cora E. Boothe, fortune teller, who declared James E. Long confessed slaying Dan Garrett, the policeman, to her a few days before he committed suicide.

FIREARMS BAN

Regulations To Keep Them Out of Mails Are Issued.

Washington, April 27.—(UP.)—Postmaster General New today issued regulations covering the recent act of Congress making unavailable, except to authorized persons, all firearms capable of being concealed on the person. The law becomes effective May 10.

The regulations provide that all persons receiving firearms through the mail must call at the Postoffice and establish identity before receiving deliveries, and that parcels containing firearms must be plainly marked.

The law provides a fine of $1,000, two years' imprisonment, or both, for violation.

HOPE FOR BOOTH

Roanoke, Va., April 27.—(UP.)—Doctors who had abandoned hope for Walter L. Booth, 18-year-old farm boy, admitted today there was a "slight possibility" of recovery for the youth who has lived six nights and five days with collapsed lungs.

Continual pumping up and down of Booth's paralyzed arms by friends has kept him alive.

LOANS UP TO $500

Many thousands of men owe their success in the world to their good wives who have steadied and balanced their social relations. These helpmates are the pilots in times of stress, guiding the ship of marital happiness into a safe haven. Any man is lucky to have a mate who keeps him close to the wise course that leads to a respected future. Many a man would not have the civic standing that is his today were it not for his wife.

And by the same token, many a man would lose his credit standing in the community if it were not for an institution such as The City Loan, with a popular loan service for public usage showing the way and providing the money for establishing his financial independence in the commercial world.

IN CLEVELANDMore Than Ten Thousand
Young People Will Attend
the Big Meeting in July.Announcements of the features of the Thirty-First International Christian Endeavor convention to be held in Cleveland, Ohio, July 2 to 7, are growing in interest to the young people of the Protestant church of Pick-
away and other Ohio counties. Rev.
George Weir of the United Brethren
church, is the county campaign director of the effort to interest all
young people in this convention secure their enrollments to it and their attendance at it.This convention will attract to the city of Cleveland during these early July days more than 10,000 young people from all over America and from Ohio outside of Cleveland. The Cleveland young people in Christian Endeavor, Epworth League, Baptist
young Peoples' Unions, etc, have already registered over 5,000 of their own number for it. It is representative of the North American states
and provinces.These conventions are held each two years to inspire thru these thousands of delegates the many other thousands back in the home churches
in cities, towns and open country
communities. The training of youth
by service. By competent conference leadership, enthusiastic and capable platform orators, great crowds
parades, musical and pageant programs these objectives are secured.
The convention's major sessions will be held in Cleveland's beautiful
municipal auditorium, the scene of the last Republican National convention, and the location of the first performances of "The Miracle" outside
of New York City. It has permanent seating capacity of 12,500 not counting a capacity of 1,000 on the platform. Many conference and exhibit rooms are also available.GOOD YEAR
FOR SUGAR
BEET GROWERSAll Statistical Signs are Now
Favorable—University
Analyst Reports.With sugar prices stronger than a year ago, the statistical signs point
to a good year for Ohio sugar beet
growers, in the opinion of K. H.
Myers, extension specialist in rural economics at the Ohio State university.There is always the weather to consider and the yield per acre, Growers who ordinarily can produce 8 tons or more of sugar beets an acre stand a chance of making money, says Mr. Myers. Yield of 8
tons an acre is necessary to meet the cost of production, according to records kept during 1926 on northwestern Ohio farms.Since the war sugar prices in the United States have been considerably
below prices of other foods. The peak price of 19.5 cents pound came in 1920. Since 1921 the price has never been above 10 cents, the economists points out. In 1925 the average price of sugar was 7.2 cents
a pound, or 30 per cent above the pre-war average price. The average price of 22 common articles of food
in 1925 was 57 per cent above the pre-war averages."Now sugar prices appear to be in a stronger position than a year ago"
Mr. Myers continues. "The estimated 1926-27 crop is 6 per cent under the previous season. With normal consumption the carry-over from the present season is likely to be small.
"Production of sugar in Cuba during the present season has been limited, by law, to 4,040,000 tons, considerably under the past year's crop.
Consumption of sugar has shown a steady increase during the past few years and there is no reason to de-lieve that it will not continue to increase."Famous in HistoryThe "Fair Geraldine," who is referred to so often by English writers of the Sixteenth century, was Lady

MARGERY—for a very good reason of her own—usually sought
the little table at the back of the avenue cafe. There, with a wall behind her and one beside her, she felt secure. It was a quiet little place, neatly arranged and well-kept, and well
patronized at breakfast by business men and young women who later took
the subway downtown.A place where a simple and appetizing breakfast could be found at
a reasonable price—that was all the cafe represented to her, until that morning when HE entered and sat
down not far from her, glanced at her
with eyes that looked as if they had never gazed at any one except in kindness, and then turned to his newspaper.She stole a swift glance or two at
him. There was a little glint of gray at his temples, his face was gentle and yet suggestive of quiet strength—the face of a man who had lived bravely through tempestuous
times and had emerged without losing faith."I could love a man like that—if he loved me," she thought to herself, and then woke up—"Foolish! day-dreaming in a cafe! When he sees you as you are, he'll never look again."She waited until he had gone by
the broad window, then she left her
table and limped slowly to the same
desk.That was her grief—the crippled
ankle that, like a stroke of fate, had taken her girlhood and almost her courage. But by the time she had reached her chair behind her desk in
the drug store, she had put thoughts
of him aside tenderly as one lays cherished things in lavender.He came the next morning, however, and many mornings after that.
He had his regular breakfast time,
she found, and she timed her appearance with his, always taking care to leave after his departure, not before.Then came the morning when the peaceful little cafe filled suddenly with strangers, and Margery guessed
that they were delegates to the convention to be held in one of the nearby halls. He came in in his quiet,
serene way, and at the quick leap of
her heart she shifted her eyes."Miss, may we put a chair at your table?" She awoke to hear the smiling Japanese head-waiter ask.She nodded—and there HE was with her."I am sorry to crowd in at your private corner," he said smiling, "but
it seemed to be a matter of breaking into your corner or breaking out without breakfast. I hope you'll forgive
my intrusion.""I do forgive," she answered, a bit
breathlessly.It was a golden moment, and golden minutes followed in which his comradeship made her feel that she had known him a long time. She chatted and gossiped with him, happy in his companionship.Then the spell broke. Just before he left, he paused, and his clear, open
eyes held hers. "I wonder if you would like to take in one of the concerts with me tonight? I am betting
you like music from what you have said. Does it appeal to you? I really should like to know you, and in this whopping big city there's no one to give us a formal introduction."Before she thought, she agreed, and she listened to his plans. The moment he had gone she remembered,
and the world grew gray about her.All that day she pondered ways
and means of escape, but in the end
with a sob choked bravely back, she vowed to herself: "I will go! I will go! I've been cheated of so much happiness—I want just this wee bit!"She waited his coming that night with fear, yet with resignation. She would have two happy hours with
him; then she would tuck them away
among her memories. "And I just know he will be kind to me!" she told herself.He was. Her lameness he seemed to take for granted, he aided her
through the evening so inconspicu-
ously that she almost forgot the dark corner in her life. She reveled in the music, for she made her love of music fill empty places in her days; and his mood and enjoyment were in tune
with hers.Then, afterwards, he took her to
his apartment where she found his mother, motherly and kind, ready with an attractive lunch. They played together some of the easier selections
they had heard earlier. And when the time for her departure came, she was on the verge of tears.In the corridor, as he drew her wrap about her, he must have guessed her mood because he said
gently: "Have you had a happy evening?"She stood silent, knowing tears
would come before speech.She felt his arm go about her gently, then as if divining her thoughts he said tenderly: "Now
listen and give heed, little lady with
the brave eyes, I want to see more
of you—tomorrow and days beyond tomorrow. I asked that the waiter give me a seat with you. Next time I want to come because you want me
to, and—promise you won't try to escape me!"She nodded a dark head, and something in her heart sang to her that there would be memories and memories to come—and none to be folded away in lavender.East Ringgold-Scioto U. B. Circuit.

Sister Has Long Vigil
Believing that her seventy-year-old sister, Mary, was only in a trance and would recover, Caroline Raywell, sixty-eight, guarded the body for three weeks before the two were found recently in Hull, England. The body was lying on a matting before a roaring fire, and was surrounded by loaves of bread and other food.

HOSPITALS IN INDIA SPREAD THE LIGHT
The missionary hospital in India has a unique value, says Albert E. Moore, M. D., English Baptist missionary in Palwal, North India: "The days of blasphemy, scorn and sneers are largely over, and India is awakening to the supreme beauty of Christ and all He signifies. There is a wonderful growth of the spirit of service which is manifested in the highest degree in a mission hospital. The people stand around and watch loathsome sores being dressed, pariah and Brahmin receiving equal attention; they watch minor operations being performed, and the consequent relief of pain; they hear no demand for money, and they hear the reason for it all in the evangelist's address. A striking corroboration of this aspect of medical missions is given in a letter from the chief magistrate of the district, who wrote to me: 'India is now beginning to wake up, and now is the time when clean, self-sacrificing, unselfish work like that of your mission can be of infinite value in setting a standard for the people.'"

HEN PRODUCT RECOGNIZED IN EGG WEEK

This Industry Stands in Fifth Place as Measured in Dollars and Cents.

The exceptional success which attended the celebration of "National Egg Day" on May first, last year, has encouraged the poultry producers and the allied industries in uniting in a great national program to pay homage to the American hen; to pay tribute to our billion and a quarter dollar poultry industry and to commend the product of the hen to our great American consuming public.

Fully realizing and appreciating the immense magnitude to which America's poultry industry has developed during the last decade; appreciating the great scientific advances which have been responsible for placing the industry on a high business plane; knowing full well the great economic importance of the poultry industry in our national scheme of human food production and appreciating the almost universal interest which our people have either in the production or consumption of eggs, the National Poultry Council, which is a delegate organization representing the production and allied interests of the poultry industry, has, by Proclamation, set aside the first seven days of May (May first to seventh inclusive, 1927) as "National Egg Week."

The National Poultry Council is organizing state and national committees to develop and promote appropriate observances of "National Egg Week." This week will be celebrated in the various states in many unique, interesting and effective ways, the details being developed by the state committees as they see fit.

"National Egg Week" will be a period in which our respects to an industry that stands fifth among our agricultural pursuits as measured by the value of products produced. It will be a period set aside to spread the message of the peculiar and valuable protective properties possessed by eggs in our human diet. It will be a period in which special emphasis can be laid upon more efficient and effective methods of producing and marketing the egg. It will, in fact, be a time when every branch of the poultry industry can "preach the gospel" of the importance of poultry husbandry and poultry products in the every day practice of feeding the millions of people in this great nation of ours.

AMUSEMENTS

With what is purported to be her finest screen offering to date, "Afraid to Love," Florence Vidor, arrives today at the Met theater.

"The Orchid Lady of the Screen," in this her third Paramount starring vehicle plays a role different in all respects from anything she had hitherto essayed. Having proved herself a capable comedienne with her recent picture, "The Poplar Sin," Miss Vidor again entertains in lighter vein.

"Afraid to Love," concerns itself with a highly humorous love triangle with Miss Vidor as the base, and Clive Brooks and Jocelyn Lee as the other two sides.

Katherine Silvertown, finds herself alone in the world and with her fortune at such a point that she has to go to work. Her family solicitor, John Travers (Norman Trevor) insists that there must be some other solution to her difficulty, and discovers it when Sir Reginald Belsize (Clive Brooks) comes to him for legal advice. Sir Reginald has an inheritance with a string or two tied to it. An eccentric uncle disapproves of his fiancée Helen de Semiano (Jocelyn Lee) and on his death wills Sir Reginald his fortune provided he marry immediately someone other than fair Jocelyn. But Belsize is in love or thinks he is, and doesn't want to give Jocelyn up. Travers suggests that he marry some woman with the understanding that she allow a divorce as soon as he gets his legacy.

Here is where Miss Silvertown displays ingenuity. The jealous Jocelyn insists that the bride be someone far less good looking than herself, Miss Vidor arrives and seems to have been made to order for the job of Sir Reginald's temporary bride. She peers upon the world thru thick glasses; further that that her eyes are crossed, she wears dowdy clothes, and appears altogether of a sour disposition. Jocelyn approves her.

On the honeymoon journey to Paris Florence discards the make-up, and appears as her own beautiful and cultured self.

LIONESS FIGHTS TO SAVE TAMER

Rescues Man Who Was Kind to Her Cubs.

London.—How a lioness successfully defended the life of a man who had administered medical attention to her sick cubs was recounted in a dispatch received here from Leicester.

Capt. Fred Wombwell, a lion tamer, with a circus showing at Leicester, entered the cage of the lioness and her cubs after a performance, and was attending to the sick cubs when the lion broke through a partition from an adjoining section of the cage, and sprang on the tamer.

The defenseless man was pinned in a corner of the cage, struggling with the enraged beast, when the mother lioness savagely sprang upon the back of the lion, biting and tearing the beast with her claws. Her efforts were successful, and after a fierce and savage struggle she dragged the lion off Captain Wombwell. His back and shoulders bleeding profusely from innumerable wounds, Wombwell succeeded in dragging himself from the cage. His strength was practically gone, but he latched the door before falling unconscious.

In the meantime, the lion turned to defend himself from the mother of the cubs, and the two beasts engaged in a fierce fight.

Wombwell was found near the cage by an attendant who was attracted to the scene by the noise of the conflict.

In connection with the rescue by the lioness, it is pointed out that Captain Wombwell was saved from almost certain death under practically identical circumstances three years ago.

Our thanks are due to the Misses Laura K., and Emma Mader for a handsome contribution for the above purpose, in memory of their father and our old comrade, Captain Jacob F. Mader Jr., of Co. B, 61st Regiment, Ohio, Veteran Volunteers 1861-1865.

Seven hundred of our comrades of the War of the Rebellion, 1861-1865, sleep under the shadow of this monument.

How Do You Choose Shoes?

Do you select shoes which will be smart and becoming and entirely suited to your needs?—or simply because they happen to be the newest fad?

In a season when so many styles are brought forth, it is very wise to choose your shoes for definite purposes, or to wear with certain costumes. For, after all, being "well dressed" depends upon your own attractiveness. And clothes, or shoes chosen in that way, will always give greater pleasure.

GOOD PROGRAM IS RENDERED BY THE DARBYVILLE UNION

Interesting Session Held At Home of Mrs. Wilda Carpenter—Topic of the Meeting Was "Good Citizenship" and Law Enforcement Was Thoroughly Discussed—Institute will Be Held In Church the Second Monday In May—Prosperity Tea In the Afternoon.

The Darbyville Woman's Christian Temperance union met at the pretty country home of Mrs. Wilda Carpenter and was opened with music, then the scripture lesson was read by President Bernice Ginder.

After devotionals and business, the following program on "Good Citizenship," was rendered:

A paper on "Court Attendance and Christian Citizenship," was read by Mrs. Hattie McKinley. Court trials are public trials, court records are public records open for inspection to any who wish to see them. The public is expected to know what the courts do. Judges cannot hold court behind closed doors and must sign their own records.

When women knew they must vote, they began to study the constitution. They learned that after legislators make laws and executives arrest law violators, judges and juries convict or acquit; and hence, the courts are the finality of government.

Prevalence of crime alarms the United States. Of the many causes, non-enforcement of law is given by the most thoughtful citizens as the chief reason for the lawlessness of the people. Law often is not enforced because judges say, "the evidence is not sufficient," or it is said that the court did not want to convict. Upright judges and faithful executives; federal, state and municipal want the people to know the facts concerning law enforcement. These facts, it seems, are obtainable by court visits. Hence, women who want the government upheld, are urged to "go-a-visiting" courting the law enforcement facts. How? General Andrews in charge of the prohibition unit of the treasury of the United States government, told the women in Detroit in November, 1925, "keep on making public opinion, to cooperate, not merely by cheerful words or pleasant smiles, but thru

How can public opinion be sound if it is not informed, unless someone you trust is present to hear what is going on? A small rotating committee or the entire membership of the local union would be of inestimable value. Women themselves would learn in a short time more unforgettable facts about government than in any other possible way. The court officials would be encouraged and be helped by interest shown. Public opinion would be created concerning the much discussed criminal court procedure; the ability, intelligence, integrity of federal, state and local officials, including revenue officers, prosecutors, sheriffs and policemen; nationality of defendants names from records; possible influence of party organizations.

Therefore, since women are urged by government to aid enforcement, and by the W. C. T. U. to know the law, know the officials charged with law enforcement and know the courts, time will be saved by court attendance.

A paper on "The Duty of a Christian Citizen," was read by Mrs. Anna Carpenter. As a Christian citizen, it is my duty to know the temperance and moral laws and the attitude of rulers and candidates toward them; to see that the temperance and moral laws are enforced; to agitate for better moral laws; to elect to office men who will enforce the prohibition law and all other laws and then uphold them; to call upon all bad officials to enforce the prohibition law and to seek their removal if they refuse; to agitate for reform measures by voice and pen; to train the young for good citizenship.

A paper on "Time and Christian Citizenship" was discussed by Mrs.

Ginder. Earnest women will budget their time, make your hours count; for budgeting time, paper, pencil and determination are needed to cut out some, not so vital, expenditure of time, some prideful activity, etc.; budget time to urge upstanding men and women friends of prohibition to be candidates for office; budget time for commendatory letters to editors, officials, ministers, anyone who has dared to be dry enough for newspaper notice.

Many a good cause has been saved when its leader, about ready to quit, received a commendatory letter, which inspired him to "keep on."

Budget your time, W. C. T. U. ladies and members, for one afternoon once a month for the meetings. Surely you can spare a few hours once a month for this worthy cause. What do you think about it?

Several articles written by Senator Capper were read by Mrs. Wilda Carpenter. One was about a judge in Ohio, who had convicted a man and sent him to the workhouse, but later procured him employment and board at the workhouse and sent his family the money he earned.

The W. C. T. U. will have its institute at the church Wednesday, May 1. We want every member, including our new members and visitors to be present.

Budget your time for the institute. There will be a Prosperity Tea in the afternoon and some radio broadcasting.

The W. C. T. U. will give a party to all who wrote on the Scientific Temperance Instruction subjects the past year. It is very gratifying.

ARABS MAKE GOOD AS DESERT POLICE

Because of their exceptional military qualities, more noticeable in the service of the French authorities, the Chamba tribesmen are acquiring a distinction as conquerors of the Sahara.

They are less known to the world than are the Tauregs, plunderers of the camel caravans and explorers. However, the Chamba are earning a reputation in tracking down the despoiling elements and have made it possible to cross the Sahara from Algeria to the River Niger with no fear of danger.

Staid as the camels on which they are mounted, able to ride over the hot sands for days and nights, stopping only to eat from their little bags filled with dried grasshoppers, and endowed with a keenness of sight that gives deadly accuracy to their rifles, these nomads inspire a great fear among the plundering tribesmen.

Too many matrimonial matches merely flare up and burn out.

Continents Connected?

Bones of great apes like those that still exist in Africa have been found in India, and some scientists believe that at one time there must have been a land connection between the two countries.

"ANTEX" WINDOW SHADES

Are Low in Price

But See the Quality
for Yourself

You'll probably read advertisements that strongly urged you to buy the product advertised. This advertisement simply tells you what you can get in a window shade for 75 cents in 36 inch width (wider shades in proportion) during the introductory sale---or while our supply lasts. Judge the value for yourself!

If you have never seen "Antex" window shades, there's a surprise in store for you at our special "Antex" introductory sale.

"Antex" shades are the newest window shades on the market. They cannot crack or develop pinholes! The surface is non-porous and does not soil readily.

"Antex" shades have a beautiful crepe finish; they are made like felt, of long, strong fiber; they have no oil, paint, starch, clay or other coating to crack; the colors are commercially fast.

They can be boiled in hot water, or soaked in hot or cold water, and after drying, will stand every test just as though they had never been wet. If wrinkled, no holes appear, and a hot iron and damp cloth will remove the wrinkles; two strong men can play tug-of-war with them; they can be cleaned with a dry rubber sponge, with art gum, or with ordinary paper cleaner.

Try any test yourself. Satisfy yourself---but do so before our limited supply is gone.

Vaccination for Control of Roup

Scientific Study Made of One of Most Serious Diseases of Fowls.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A scientific study of roup in poultry, one of the most serious fowl diseases, supports the conclusion that proper vaccination is one of the most effective means for reducing this source of loss.

The study was conducted by Dr. George W. Stiles and Dr. Hubert Bunyee, both of the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. In a recent scientific paper, "Vaccination and Medication for Control of Roup," Doctor Bunyee reports the following conclusions, based on experiments:

Young Birds Susceptible.

Birds about one year old appear to be more susceptible to roup than those two years old or older under the same conditions.

The use of antiseptics in the drinking water (permanganate of potash, and bichloride of mercury in particular) does not appear to have any appreciable curative virtue and very little preventive property.

The local external application of solutions of mercurochrome or silver nitrate is not very effective in the prevention or treatment of roup.

Prevention of Disease.

Bacterins prepared from the bacteria involved in outbreaks of roup appear to be effective in the prevention of the disease as well as the treatment of incipient cases, even under unfavorable climatic conditions. Two kinds of bacterins have proved effective, one made from bacteria occurring in a single outbreak and one from infections in a number of outbreaks.

The progress of roup is appreciably influenced by "secondary invaders," meaning bacteria which develop in addition to the chief virus that causes the disease. The use of vaccination in treating a considerable number of poultry flocks with roup gave very encouraging results.

Wheat Protein Content of Greater Importance

Protein content has become of increasing importance in determining the price paid for any particular lot of wheat. On occasions when the supply of high protein wheat has been less than the demand, premiums of as much as a cent have been paid for each added tenth of one per cent of protein over a given basic amount.

Protein tests by different chemists often do not agree within one tenth of one per cent even when the ability and conscientiousness of the chemist are beyond question, with the result that numerous complaints are heard regarding the making of protein tests on wheat.

To determine how close different laboratories should be able to report protein results on the same sample of wheat as well as to explain why these variations occur, was the object of investigations reported in Department of Agriculture Bulletin No. 1460-D, "Testing Wheat for Protein with a Recommended Method for Making the Test."

The sources of error which occur in making protein tests have been carefully studied and as a result a standard procedure is recommended to eliminate these errors. Suggestions are given also regarding how close independent laboratories should agree when making protein tests.

A copy of the bulletin may be obtained by writing the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Agricultural Facts

Test your seed---don't guess.

A test in time may save a bushel in nine. Test your seed corn.

The best way to economize in man and horse labor is to keep them busy.

Lime is required as a plant food by all crops. Some crops require more than others.

Plants, like animals, must be well fed if they are to pay for the labor and cost of growing them.

Lime promotes the decay of vegetable matter in the soil and thus aids in the formation of humus.

Competition may be the life of trade, but co-operation will certainly add vigor to the life of farming.

Lime, by sweetening the acid soil, favors the growth of most legumes, such as clover, alfalfa, and peas.

Potatoes, whether for seed or eating purposes, should be stored at temperatures of not more than 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

Keep after the weeds, as this is very important, especially when the vegetable and flower plants are young. Cultivate often and good.

Remember when we used to think that alfalfa wasn't a safe feed for horses---that it caused heaves and overworked the kidneys? The idea has been pretty well exploded.

Gwinnett's Ghost Leads to Long-Lost Documents

Atlanta, Ga.—The ghost of Button Gwinnett, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, has come back to help Georgia recover valuable historical documents lost for a century or more.

Ever since the state filed claim in a New York court to a will, which carries the signature of Gwinnett, sold at an auction last summer for $22,500, hundreds of the papers have been returned almost as mysteriously as they were taken, says Miss Ruth Blair, state historian.

"No questions asked" is the one condition most of the persons asked in returning the documents. Others mailed them in anonymously.

The Gwinnett will had been in the state's files at one time, the attorney-general contends, and was reported lost about 25 years ago.

Securing Wall Paper

If wall paper persists in peeling off despite repasting, it can be secured with flat-headed carpet nails, on the heads of which pieces of paper have been gummed to make them unnoticed. Again, doors and floor-boards often shrink, causing a draught under the door. Such a gap is easily got rid of by inserting pieces of paper to build up the carpet or linoleum.

Every Reason to Want to Be Married
By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright.)

OF COURSE Ted Farnsworth carried a watch—a very thin, extremely expensive watch that his mother had given him when he was graduated from college and it usually came within five minutes one way or the other of telling the right time. After leaving it with the jeweler for regulation on several occasions to find that at the end of each visit it was as temperamental as ever Ted gave up the idea of carrying the exact time about with him. And in Melville where he now lived with his mother there was Miss Day.

Miss Day lived a block further from the station than he did, and it had come to be Ted's unfeeling habit to take the passing of this young woman in the morning as a signal to put on his hat and coat.

"I suppose," said his mother one day at breakfast, "that if Miss Day ever stopped commuting I should have to get a really up-to-date clock—or that you'd have to have your watch regulated. Here she comes now. And she's got on her raincoat. You'd better wear yours and take an umbrella."

So Ted sauntered toward the hall, slipped his feet into his rubbers, donned hat and coat and took an umbrella and did not notice until he was outside that the sun was shining.

He bowed in a perfunctory manner at the station to the girl in a red raincoat and then hurried along the platform to join one or two of the men with whom he customarily rode to town. Some one observed his wet-weather paraphernalia, but Ted was too gallant to place the blame where it belonged.

Then one morning he loitered longer than usual at breakfast—or at least so it seemed to him. He left his house as usual a few minutes after Miss Day had passed. Two blocks from the station he saw his train draw in and while he was still running up the station stairs the train drew swiftly out.

He turned to go into the waiting-room, not quite sure what he would do next, when he saw Miss Day panting for breath coming up the stairs. Ted had never been introduced to her, though he did lift his hat when he passed her because she in her turn always bowed to him. Miss Day spoke first.

"My, but I'm out of breath," she gasped. "I ran two blocks to catch the train and then missed it. I don't know what I am going to do after this. You know I never can keep a watch going right—and there's been a girl on our street who always started out just a shade before I had to start. She went the other direction toward the trolley. But she's going to be married next week and so she's stopped working."

That explained one part of the conundrum, but Dick wanted to know why she could no longer be trusted as a barometer.

"But why did you wear a raincoat the other day when the sun was shining?"

Miss Day pouted a little. "It was foolish, wasn't it?" she asked. "But you see it was my new red raincoat and I like it so much that I just wore it anyway. Don't you like raincoats?"

Dick, becoming more and more convinced of the prettiness of Miss Day, stammered something to the effect that it was the prettiest raincoat he had ever seen. Then as his companion sighed and said that it was very important for her to be in her office before half-past nine, a way out of the difficulty occurred to him.

"I can go back and get my car," he said, "and if you don't mind fast driving, we can get in town in about three-quarters of an hour. We'll have to wait an hour for the next train."

In spite of fast driving along crowded roads Jim and Miss Day talked gaily all the way in that morning and he did not leave her until he had gained permission to call for her at five and drive her home. He'd have to take the car home, anyway. And that day he took his watch to a first-rate jeweler's and secured the use of a guaranteed timepiece for the period required to put his own in condition.

On the way back that evening his companion complained again about her difficulty in catching her train now that her reliable neighbor was to be married.

"I don't see what a girl nowadays wants to be married for, anyway," suggested Jim.

"Every reason in the world," was Miss Day's emphatic rejoinder. "That is, if she really cares for the man."

Jim had a solution to offer for her difficulty. He told her that he had a thoroughly reliable watch and that every day five minutes before it was time for him to start he would telephone to her.

And so matters rested for a few months. Meantime Jim called frequently at the house of the Days in the evening.

Then one day without preamble he reminded her of what she had said about getting married. "You said a girl had every reason in the world to want to be married if she really cared for the man. The important thing then is this—do you really care for me—or could you possibly bring yourself to do so?"

And Miss Day, looking very serious and pretty at the same time, said that she really believed she cared a great deal for Jim already.

A Change
Nine weddings out of ten the society editor can guess correctly the selections that will be played and sung, preceding, during and following the ceremony. However, the other day she found a new one. Along with the program of the usual bridal airs of "Oh Promise Me," "At Dawning," "To a Wild Rose," etc., was the number "Adore, and Be Still."

Looks like new; it isn't tho just had them cleaned at Barnhill's, very common remark. Call office 710.

Increase Potato Yield Per Acre

Farmers Do Not Make Efficient Use of Knowledge in Growing Spuds.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Last fall a firm of California's potato growers harvested an average of 1,000 bushels of potatoes per acre from nine acres. The rest of the country, if previous production records are a reliable index, harvested approximately 113 bushels to the acre. Farmers in Great Britain have been producing an average of 200 bushels per acre for a number of years. It is evident, says William Stuart, potato specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture, that the general run of farmers who grow potatoes in the United States do not make efficient use of the available knowledge on increasing acre production.

Cause of Low Yield.
Of the many factors causing a low average potato yield in this country, poor seed is one of the most important, says Mr. Stuart. The American potato grower, generally speaking, pays too little attention to the quality and quantity of the seed used. The California record was due in part to the use of 40 bushels of seed per acre, almost twice the quantity generally used even by the most progressive growers.

Perhaps the best way for the average grower to be assured of good seed is to purchase "certified seed." Certified seed is being produced by groups of growers in twenty or more states, who give special attention to the production of seed that will pass state inspection as to yielding ability, uniformity, truthness to name, and freedom from disease.

Improved Seed.
There is abundant evidence that certified seed is improved seed, and that it will yield much more than common or "grocery store" seed. For instance, the average yield in Michigan last year was 122 bushels per acre, while the average production from certified seed was 256 bushels per acre. This represents a gain of 134 bushels on each acre planted with certified seed. In comparative tests made last year by the Tennessee state experiment station certified seed produced an average of 183 bushels to the acre, while the yield from uncertified seed was but 102 bushels per acre.

Soy Beans One of Easy Crops to Grow on Farm

Soy beans will grow on all kinds of soils. Soy bean hay is more nutritious than cowpea hay and stock like it better. As a milk-and-butter producer, they are equal to alfalfa and superior to cottonseed meal. A bushel of soy beans is worth more for feed than two bushels of corn. They can be hogged down without any harvesting expense. When cut at the proper stage of growth, the hay is equal to alfalfa for dairy cattle. Drought and excessive rainfall effect them less than cowpeas.

It is one of the easiest crops to grow and harvest. They make a fine hay pasture. They can be grown with cowpeas to hold the pea vines off the ground, and will improve the quality of the hay and make it easier to cure. They increase the yield of the following crop. They make a rich and nutritious hay and one of the cheapest. One can always find ready sale for both beans and hay. They are one of the most economical of soil improvers. They require no fertilizers except acid phosphate. Plant more soy beans.

In Spring Cut Out and Bury Raspberry Canes

The way black raspberries propagate is this: Late in the season, September and October, some of the new shoots bend over until they touch the ground and the tips take root, forming new plants.

These may be left where they grew until the following spring, when the parent cane is cut off just a few inches above the new plant and you have a new stock of plants. The old fruiting plants never sucker, but a sufficient number of new shoots, later called canes, come up each year to form a new bush.

As soon as the berry season is over or the following spring, cut out and burn all canes which have borne fruit. These are all through, will never bear again and if not removed will stand as dead brush. Many growers leave them until spring to help hold up the new canes during heavy snow, ice or wind storms. Not a bad idea. There is not much more to be said.

Agricultural Facts

Bugs and fungi wait for no man.
Legumes and lime are the gold dust twins of agriculture.

The best sort of "farm relief" comes from intelligence, energy, and thrift.

Regardless of the statements of overenthusiastic dealers seed treatment will not control corn smut.

Farming is hard work, but the biggest waste in farming is the waste of time in an unbalanced farming plan.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Columbus Presbyterian was held at the Indianola Presbyterian church in Columbus on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. In attendance from this city were, Mrs. E. S. Toensmeier, Mrs. Geo. Morris, Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker, Mrs. Wm. Mack, Mrs. Glenn Nickerson, Miss Edith Haswell, Miss Clara Southward, Mrs. W. F. Cellar, Mrs. Florence Steele and Mrs. George Goodchild.

Short Period of Glory

For many centuries Greek was the classic language in literature until it was supplanted by Latin. The classic period of Latin literature lasted barely 100 years. Between the year 100 B. C. and the beginning of the Christian era, Cicero, Lucretius, Caesar, Horace, Virgil, Ovid and Livy all lived and wrote and passed away.

SPECIAL SALE AND DEMONSTRATION

By a Practical Paint Man From the Factory

10% Discount On Thrift Day

Thrift Paint is the best Paint Proposition we ever sold or know about, for these reasons:

Thrift Paint is made of Pure White Lead, Zinc, Colors, Dryer and Linseed Oil in required proportions to produce the longest wear, beautiful colors and finish. Thrift Paint comes in a master painter's unreduced form and is ground so fine and mixed so well that it does not settle, and covers more surface. Thrift Paint is made ready for use by mixing one gallon of "Thrift" with one gallon of pure linseed oil, producing two gallons of paint, for first coat or priming more oil is added.

The Johnson Paint Co. make only high grade paints, but conceived this idea of saving Half the Cost of cans, boxing, labels, labor and freight which makes a saving of 75c to $1.00 per gallon as compared with other High Grade Paints.

This outstanding bargain for Thrift Paint is offered one day only in the year, when you can buy Thrift at 10 per cent less by booking your orders and paying a small amount down, and balance when you get the paint anytime during May, June or July.

Selfishness Punished

If you seek in the spirit of selfishness to grasp all as your own, you shall lose all and be driven out of the world, at last, naked and forlorn, to everlasting poverty and contempt.—Jonathan Edwards.

One Survivor of Fleet

Of the fleet of vessels sent out from Spain July 24, 1525, under the command of Garcia Louisa, to follow up the discoveries of Magellan, only one ship was able to reach the Moluccas.

INDIANS HAD FIRST LEAGUE ALLIANCE

Six Nations Were Factors in the Early Days

Washington, D. C.—The tradition of the first effective all-American league of nations is sinking before the rising tide of civilization.

For 200 years members of the Six Nations of the great Iroquois confederacy have looked upon themselves as a distinct nation. Now, however, the remnants of the Iroquois tribes in Canada and the Senecas, Onondagas and others in New York find to their dismay that they are legally considered citizens of countries traditionally supposed by them to be their allies. Most of the old guard among the Iroquois, according to Arthur C. Parker, director of the Rochester municipal museum, in a report to Art and Archaeology, feel that for either Canada or the United States to legislate them into citizenship was as futile as for those same countries to legislate China and Mexico into the United States or Canadian citizenship.

The treaty signed by representatives of the Six Nations and the newly established republic of the United States in 1794 in Canandaigua, N. Y., is still as sacred to the Iroquois as the Monroe doctrine is to the State department. The more enlightened among their numbers, however, see, says Mr. Parker, that this measure of assimilation is only economic necessity and that for Indians to seek to maintain economic independence would be suicide.

Was League to Enforce Peace.

The Iroquois confederacy was a genuine league to enforce peace, but by force of circumstances developed into the most effective fighting body among the aborigines of North America. All the tribes that were not asked to participate in the confederacy were jealous and strife naturally followed until they were subdued. The Iroquois, moreover, started and enforced the original Americanization scheme, according to Mr. Parker. Every nation that resisted its power was segregated and led to new homes and taught how to behave.

Though their culture was not of a high type, in their civil and social structure they excelled. Their "constitution" is said to be ideally adapted to the type of people for which it was designed. Women had an important place and the council of women had the power of nominating all the civil chiefs. Women, being mothers, were regarded as more valuable than men and their ransom price when captured was twice that of a man.

In the Seventeenth century the Iroquois were an important influence in determining whether this country would be dominated by the French or the English. Their Huron rivals in Canada looked to the French as a means of overthrowing their ancient enemy, while in New York the Iroquois looked to the British for the same end. Though the French were, on the whole, better liked, the Indians eventually found that the English were squarer to deal with.

According to Mr. Parker the French forfeited the respect of their Huron allies by burning the fields and stores of corn in the Seneca villages. To burn corn, even that of an enemy, was to sin against nature, against the spirits that sustain life. Therefore the pillaging French soldiers were offending one of the vital religious principles of the Hurons as well as the Iroquois, and so contributed their share to losing for France an empire in the new world.

Tells How Irish Quit

War to Pick Flowers

Kilkenny, Ireland.—Even an Irish soldier will give up a fight for a flower, according to Lady Ossory of Kilkenny castle, who is once more laying out beds of azaleas on the grounds of her home overlooking the River Nore.

During the Irish troubles the castle was once in the direct line of attack. Lady Ossory attributes her escape from grave danger to the fact that soldiers of the Free State and Republican forces, coming from opposite directions, were distracted by the gay colors of her famous azaleas.

Instead of carrying on their fight they stopped to pick the flowers. The struggle is now locally known as the "battle of the flowers."

Lord and Lady Ossory were besieged by the rebels during much of the trouble. Lord Ossory inherited the property from his uncle, Lord Ormonde.

Americans Launch Rival

To Monte Carlo Sport

Monte Carlo, Monaco.—For years humane societies have protested in vain against the pigeon shoots held in Monte Carlo under the auspices of the Casino. Thousands of birds are slaughtered to provide amusement for the sportsmen who congregate at the gambling center of Europe.

Now a group of American, British, French and Italian marksmen have decided to do more than protest. They have formed a rival shooting club, with headquarters at Cagnes-sur-Mer, halfway between Nice and Cannes. It is announced that the American clay pigeon will be used exclusively. This is the first time that a definite step has been taken to rival any of the sporting activities of Monte Carlo.

BEATING THE CORN BORER AT HIS WORK

Special Machinery Put to Work to Aid the Farmer to Clean Up Fields.

More than 500 tractors and stubble beaters are now at work in Ohio's 42 borer-infested counties, helping farmers pulverize the European corn borer's favorite winter headquarters, corn stubble.

This report has been sent to the agricultural college extension service at the Ohio State university, Columbus, from the Toledo headquarters of the state-federal campaign to check the corn borer.

The stubble beater, a device manufactured especially for corn borer warfare, pulverizes corn stubble with short, loose knives which revolve at the rate of 1,500 revolutions a minute.

Until May 1, these beaters are being loaned to farmers thruout the invested area, in Indiana, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania as well as in Ohio, at the rate of a dollar an acre. That includes tractor and operator and fuel. This amount is then deducted from the two dollars an acre the farmer gets if his corn fields and premises pass inspection on or after May 1, as clean. After May 1, the stubble beaters will gradually be diverted to the fields of farmers who have made no effort to clean up.

Much of this machinery was diverted last week, the Toledo headquarters reports to the wheat sections of the state. Where farmers have fall sown wheat in corn stubble land, it is necessary to get the stubble immediately, for soon the wheat will be so far advanced the stubble beater will injure it.

JUNIOR CHOIR PERFORMANCE IS VERY GOOD

The Musical Comedy "The Church Fair" Made a Hit Thursday Evening.

Quite unusual, in an amateur performance was the careful thought for details in "The Church Fair" the cantata, which was sung Thursday evening by the Junior choir of the Lutheran church. Before a crowded house, and under the splendid direction of Mrs. James P. Moffitt and Miss Mary Heffner the young people sang their parts with ease and charming manner and there were many splendid voices among the soloists and choruses.

The roles of the girls were those of helpers at a church fair, where there were flower and candy booths and what-not booths, and the girls looked lovely enough to sell out everything to the tightest wads in town. Some of the boys were regular clowns in their parts as attentive admirers trying to help the fair ladies, with very poor success, in most cases. They put across some antics that would make professionals perk up and take notice.

It was all, exceedingly well done, and while a few features were especially good, the entire performance was quite entertaining. There was only one drawback—we sat on the front row, and they did not even offer us any lemonade. But we were content just to see the act and listen to the very promising talent of the actors.

The play will be repeated this evening.

Any More Like This?

F. L. Rollins of Laconia, N. H., reports that his record of being the son of a father who was alive when George Washington was President, has been equaled in his own city by Mrs. Bertha A. Dearborn, who is the daughter of Stephen N. Morse of Ashland, born April 11, 1793. He was seventy-five years of age when Mrs. Dearborn was born.—Indianapolis News.

(Copy for This Department supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

One of the five national vice commanders of the American Legion this year is a doctor of medicine who enlisted in the National Guard of his state as a private in the medical corps, was commissioned the first year and in a short time arose to the position of chief surgeon of the state and a member of the governor's staff as surgeon-general. He is Dr. John G. Towne of Waterville, Maine, born May 26, 1877, a graduate of Baltimore university and a leader in the medical profession.

Both Mrs. Towne and their daughter Elizabeth are much interested in Legion affairs. Mrs. Towne helped form the Bourque unit of the American Legion auxiliary, has served as its president, was the first president of the state auxiliary and has served as national committeewoman from Maine for a number of years. Elizabeth was the youngest member enrolled as a charter member of the Bourque unit.

Doctor Towne enlisted in the medical corps of the Second Maine regiment in March 1908, and was promoted in rapid order to the position of surgeon-general on the governor's staff. When the regiment was called out April 13, 1917, a little more than a week after the United States declared war, Major Towne went into the service and when Gen. Clarence

Dr. John G. Towne.

R. Edwards arrived in Boston to take command of the Northeastern department, he summoned Major Towne to headquarters and made him director of the hospitals of the Twenty-sixth division, then in process of formation.

He was sent to France in advance of the division and established hospitals in the training area around Neuf Chateau. When the division arrived they found splendid hospital facilities already established and these were used by many other outfits which served in that area. During the winter he was placed on detached service at the British field school on the Western front. He served there for three months and later was sent to the first army training school at Longres. He was near Cambrai when the Germans wiped out the British force there, being in the town for two hours before the Germans broke through and practically every man that he was associated with was either killed or captured.

Major Towne returned to the division in time for service on the Soissons front and again on the Toul front, supervising the moving of hospitals from one sector to the other. After he had established hospitals on the Chateau Thierry front he received orders which made him commander of camp hospital No. 20 about forty-two miles from Bordeaux and there he stayed for ten months, leaving the hospital after the armistice to be attending surgeon at Bordeaux. He received his promotion as lieutenant colonel May 2, 1919, for his efficient work in the base section area. Upon his return to this country Colonel Towne went into the reserves.

He became the first commander of the George N. Bourque post No. 5, serving two years. Among other Legion positions he has held, is that of state commander in 1923.

Presents Land to Post

The El Monte (Calif.) post of the American Legion has been presented title to a half-acre of land near the city by Francis Marion Guess in honor of his brother Sergt. John Guess, who was killed in France in 1918. The land, which is beautifully wooded, will be used as a building site for a Legion clubhouse and for a boy scout camping ground. It will be called Camp John Guess.

Ohio Woman Post Commander

Mrs. Maude Ramsey, who served as a nurse during the World war and received a citation from the French government for bravery under fire has been elected commander of William Stour Post of The American Legion at Kenton, Ohio. Mrs. Ramsey is believed to be the first woman in Ohio to command a Legion post.

CHINESE GOVERNMENT USES STERN MEASURES AT PEKING

Twenty Chinese Followers of the Bolshevik Army of Agitators Are Summarily Strangled—Short Shift Given Them Following a Secret Trial—Russian Agitators Released But Ordered To Leave China—Russian Spy System Uncovered.

The raid by northern soldiers and police on buildings attached to the soviet embassy at Peking, early this month, Thursday had an aftermath in the execution by strangling of 20 Chinese, including a woman, arrested in the buildings as communist agitators.

Li Ta-Chai, a widely known communist, was one of those executed.

The semi-official announcement of the executions said that the prisoners were tried secretly for three days before a special court. This court ordered the summary execution of 20 of the more than 50 originally arrested and their orders were carried out at police headquarters.

Foreign correspondents Thursday were permitted to inspect, translations and photographs of documents stated to have been seized in the raid of April 6, which has resulted in a protest from the soviet government and the withdrawal from Peking of the soviet charge d'affaires and the entire embassy personnel.

The documents contained the seating plans of legation dinner parties at Peking, alleged verbatim reports of dinner table conversations, lists of all callers at the various legations, reports of their conversations and minute instructions for hiring "spies" at the British, American and Japanese legations to obtain such information.

These spies were not allowed to know that they were working for the soviets, according to the documents, but were to be told they were working for a Chinese political party. They were paid a special premium for obtaining secret military documents.

Another document, stated by the northern officials to have been seized in the raid, purported to be a resolution adopted at the seventh plenary session of the executive communist international at Moscow, supposed to have been held in January, and called for the bolshevization of China by organizing the peasantry, by economic strikes and of a political anti-imperialist struggle. This document said that the Chinese revolution must take on a wider anti-capitalist development.

Other documents shown to the correspondents purported to be translations of the minutes of meetings of the Cantonese military council at Canton attended by Michael Borodin, the Russian who has been acting as adviser to the Cantonese government at Hankow. A military code also was displayed by the northern officials.

A sailor, the most seriously wounded.

RECOVERED FROM FIRE.

Following the fire Monday evening April 25, the Zenker Brothers' Monumental works were partially put out of commission, but in three days everything was put in first class shape and now the plant is in complete working condition and they are fully prepared for Decoration day orders.

The fire was confined to the work room and the stock did not sustain the slightest damage.

Credit Term

The phrase "on tick" is said to date back to the seventeenth century when a tradesman's bill was called a ticket.

ed of the casualties aboard the U. S. auxiliary vessel Penguin, which was fired on by Chinese near Kiangyin several days ago, was brought to Shanghai Thursday aboard the U. S. destroyer, Peary.

The man, whose name was understood to be Neilson, was placed in the ship's hospital aboard the U. S. transport Chaumont.

Members of the Kuomintang (Cantonese political party), say that the firing on the Penguin was not intended by the Cantonese, who were seeking to hold up coal barges en route for Hankow.

They said that the Penguin was conveying Chinese steamers with coal to Hankow, that they did not object to the shipment of a small amount for the American navy, but that a Chinese contractor was attempting to slip thru an additional supply for Hankow, which is the seat of the radical Cantonese government, which is being opposed by the moderate government set up at Nanking.

In attempting to hold up this coal, it was said, firing had been resorted to, but that the Cantonese did not want to hit the Penguin.

SEVEN STATES FIGHT FLOOD DISEASE PERIL

Said to be the Greatest Peace Time Health Problem Ever to Face America.

Health authorities of the seven states swept by the Mississippi Valley flood, aided in their efforts by the American Red Cross, are planning vigorous means to protect the health of more than 200,000 homeless persons.

Called into conference by Dr. William R. Redden, national medical officer of the Red Cross, the health authorities were told that they faced solving "the greatest peace-time health problem ever to confront America."

Disease, stalking in the wake of the flood disaster, is jeopardizing life and health in Kentucky, Arkansas, Illinois, Missouri, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee, declared Dr. Redden. He asserted that prompt and efficient measures were essential to prevent the flood from taking greater toll thru disease, which will be likely to become general unless sanitation and other conditions are remedied.

In his plea, Dr. Redden was joined by Henry M. Baker, national director of relief for the Red Cross, who related that a staff of 42,000 nurses and a relief fund that has passed $2,675,000 are available.

Reports of smallpox, measles, mumps, typhoid fever, malaria fever tuberculosis, influenza and other diseases due to germs and exposure in the flooded areas were heard by the conference. It was emphasized, however, that conditions had not reached an alarming stage.

It was held that the most dangerous period would come when the flood waters recede, leaving stagnant lakes and pools, muddy flats and broken or damaged sanitation fatalities.

CHOIR LEADER WAS ARRESTED IN COLUMBUS

Frederick Brown, of Elyria, Charged With Non-support of Three Children.

Frederick Brown missing Elyria choir leader whose arrest in Columbus Thursday ended a state-wide search conducted since he disappeared from his home more than a week ago was free Thursday night on $500 bond.

Brown was charged in a warrant sworn by his wife with abandonment and non support of his three minor children. He waived arraignment and his bond was furnished by his mother.

He was arrested at the postoffice in Columbus as he inquired for mail addressed to Frederick Thompson.

The hunt for him was delayed at the start by the collapse of his wife following his disappearance. Until she swore to the warrant Lorain county officials contented themselves with merely a local search.

Two anonymous telephone calls shortly before Brown left, warning Mrs. Brown of approaching trouble, added mystery to the disappearance.
